BRIEF REVIEW OF THE BATTLE NEWS

During the past twenty-four hours the Germans have concentrated their greatest efforts on the Flanders battle front towards the capture of Kemmel Hill, a strategic height position in Belgium, between Ypres and the French frontier.

Both British and French troops defended the high ground, but by the use of superior numbers the Germans were able to obtain a footing there.

If the Germans should capture the whole ridge and to hold their gain the British position at Ypres would be put in a serious predicament. The height dominates the low ground lying to the west and southwest of Ypres and the important railway line which runs westward from Ypres through Poperinghe. This railway is one of the two chief lines of communication which has been feeding supplies to the British holding the northern end of the line.

The German army that struck at Kemmel Hill is that under command of General Von Arnim and is composed of large forces of fresh troops.

While the Allies lost slightly on the Flanders front they were more successful on the Picardy Plains. In the sector of Villers-Bretonneux (which the British recaptured on Thursday) the British position was improved by the clearing out of German posts southeast of the village. These posts had obstinately held out and were giving the British considerable annoyance.

There were heavy bombardments between the Somme and Arras rivers, particularly in the region of Hangard-en-Santerre (about nine miles east of the British base at Amiens.)

(Americans are on a section of the French front south of the Somme river and near the Arras. That they are actually in the fighting was shown by the fact that wounded have been sent to the rear.)

The Australians have also taken a prominent part in the fighting in this region, attacking shoulder to shoulder with the British at Villers-Bretonneux.

The struggle of the past twenty-four hours on the Flanders front was of a most sanguinary nature. The Germans suffered tremendous losses, especially in the grueling action around Viestraat, Draunoutre and Kemmel, (in Belgium.)

These three towns all lie close together a few miles south of Ypres and in the general vicinity of Kemmel Hill. They lie at the extreme eastern end of the German salient that juts westward towards Hazebrouck.

This was the thirty-seventh day of the German grand offensive and the seventeenth day of the battle of Flanders.

DOUBLE BATTLE STILL RAGING

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, April 26.—The Germans are again making a determined effort to capture Kemmel Ridge, a strategic stretch of high ground in Belgium just west of the lower end of Messines Ridge.

A belated report from the German war office, issued last night, and received here early today, stated that General Sixt von Arnim's army was fighting for possession of Kemmel Ridge and the village of Kemmel on the crest.

The great double battle, which developed two days ago on the Picardy and Flanders fields, was still raging last night with varying success. The British recaptured the village of Villers-Bretonneux, but slightly retired their lines at some points on the Flanders front to avoid useless losses. Australian troops have played a brilliant part in the fighting south of the Somme river (opposite Amiens).

Australian forces, in conjunction with English soldiers, attacked in the sector of Villers-Bretonneux and not only drove the Germans from the village but captured more than 600 prisoners.

Earlier German attacks in the neighborhood had been carried out with about 50,000 troops. Despite the vigor of the assaults the Germans were unable to gain any ground and Field Marshal Haig in his official dispatches on Thursday night emphasized the severity of the German losses.

The Germans were unable to renew their attacks in the sector Hangard-en-Santerre, but the artillery on both sides was very active. The big guns were active all the way to the Arras river.

A feature of the engagement on the Picardy field was duels between tanks. The British remained complete masters in this phase of the fighting, however. The British tanks, with their machine guns spitting fire, plowed through the German ranks mowing down Germans right and left.

French troops are now fighting alongside of the British all along both battle fronts. They are reported to be taking a prominent part in the defense of Kemmel Ridge and the village of the same name where the Germans now seem to be concentrating their greatest efforts.

The Germans have been unable to take any of the objectives set for the present assaults.

"The great battle of Flanders has again been renewed," said the Times today in commenting upon the fighting on the western front. "So far the enemy has been making only limited attacks. The Germans are concentrating their efforts at two points on the long fighting line. They are driving straight for Amiens in the angle between the Somme and Arras rivers. In Belgium the enemy is making a desperate effort to win the key position at Kemmel Ridge."

"The Germans suffered a severe repulse before Amiens, but on the Franco-Belgian frontier they made some progress. The Kemmel position is evidently serious."

Americans are taking part in this struggle and already a number of wounded men from General Pershing's command have reached the rear.

EVERYBODY FOUGHT AT SEICHEPREY

Incidents of Heroism of American

Troops Related by Wounded Survivors in Hospitals Back of the Lines.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

With The American Army in France, April 25.—For the Americans, the battle of Seicheprey was everybody's fight, cooks, stretcher bearers, signal men, chaplains joining in a heroic battle, new details of which are revealed today in the hospitals back of the lines.

For the Germans it was a battle of picked shock troops, blonde giants who in the words of an American now laid up by wounds, fight until their leader is killed and then run "like a bunch of quitters."

John A. Dockman of Somerville, Mass., whom nurses and officers alike praise as a young hero, today told from his cot in an evacuation hospital a story dealing chiefly with the heroic acts of his companions in battle. He modestly slid over his own part of the fight. He commanded a mortar unit at the front, jumping to this post from a job as printer for the Riverside Press in Cambridge, Mass.

"Others in the gang deserve more praise than I," he said. "There isn't much to tell. The Germans came in swarms. Our duty was to protect the first line infantry until our artillery got into action. I was glad to learn from commanding officers that our fire destroyed the German formations. We planted mortar shells between the second and third waves of attacking forces."

"I commanded a crew of game kids. There was not a quitter among them and they all fought like hell. For twelve minutes we were entirely cut off by German barrage fire. They dropped twenty shells almost on top of our dugout in rapid succession."

"I lost my left eye, my right foot and left arm were badly banged up and I was struck in the shoulder and right hand. It was worth it though, for what we did to the Boche before he got us. Every foot of earth looked like it had been plowed up. Shells were so thick it is a wonder any of us survived."

"Our crew was made up of boys from Gloucester, Somerville and Medford."

"Harry Alsen, 17, was the youngest of the gang, and the gamest. He died on the hill. Before he passed out he asked Howland to give a cigarette. Howland lighted it and with a smile on his pale face said: 'Stick to it fellows, give them hell.'"

"In a few minutes he was silent. 'King Cole' died in a hospital. Charlie Humwson also was fatally wounded."

"I know I can never get into it again on account of my eye and foot, but I'd give anything to."

Private Raymond Annon, of New Haven, was one of the sanitary corps men to prove himself a first rate fighting man. With his left leg torn by shrapnel he showed great courage, aiding comrades he saw wounded all about him.

The commander of a cannon was missing. Annon took charge. Finding the battle had disorganized first aid organization at one point he organized a new corps under a rain of shells and hurried the American wounded to dressing stations, refusing to quit though wounded. He was complimented on his feat by an officer of high rank.

Clerks and runners—message bearers—took guns from wounded Americans and helped drive the Boche from the village of Seicheprey.

SANITARY CODE IS BEING VIOLATED

Parents, Heads of Families and Hotel Proprietors Must Report Communicable Diseases Where No Physician Attends Patient.

It has been reported to the board of health that parents are not reporting communicable cases of diseases where no physician is in attendance. The failure to do this is a violation of the state sanitary code and also of the local sanitary code.

The local code provides that "when no physician is in attendance every householder or head of family in a house wherein any case of communicable disease may occur, shall report the same to the board of health officer, within twenty-four hours from the time of his knowledge of the nature of such disease."

The state code has a similar provision requiring the head of a private household or the proprietor or keeper of any hotel, boarding house or lodging house, to report forthwith to the health officer all facts relating to the illness of any person in the household, hotel, boarding house or lodging house under her charge, who appears to be affected with any communicable disease, when no physician is in attendance.

The state code includes as communicable disease, chickenpox, measles, mumps, scarlet fever, diphtheria, whooping cough, tuberculosis, typhoid fever and other diseases.

The board has been asked to enforce these provisions of the code, and will do so. Parents should comply with these health regulations to avoid arrest.

FARM FURLOUGHS AND LOCAL BOARDS

The local exemption boards have been notified by the adjutant general that local boards have been selected to pass on farm furloughs for the reason that they are familiar with agricultural conditions in their jurisdiction. They will consider all applications for such furloughs, whether men are in the Regular Army, National Guard or National Army.

DEAD MAN FOUND IN RONDOUT CREEK

Thought to be John Zylar Who Has Been Missing Since April 9—Body Found Near Derrenbacher's Corner.

This morning some boatmen found a body of a man floating in the Rondout creek at Derrenbacher's Corner, and pulled it out of the water. Coroner E. A. Kelly was notified and he sent Dr. J. S. Robinson to the scene, who examined the body and found no marks of violence on it. Death was due to drowning.

It was evident that the body had been in the water some time. Dr. Robinson said this morning, when questioned.

Indications seem to point to the fact that the dead man was John Zylar, a Polish laborer employed by the Knickerbocker Ice Company, who left his boarding house at No. 21 East Pierpont street late Tuesday afternoon, April 9, and who has not been seen since that time. The last seen of him alive was in a saloon on Mill street late the night of the day he was reported missing.

Several days later the matter was reported to the police department, but they were unable to find any trace of the missing man.

It was thought at that time that he may have fallen overboard in the creek.

Coroner Kelly later turned the body over to Undertaker N. D. J. Murphy.

Body Was Identified.

Undertaker N. D. J. Murphy stated this afternoon that the body of the drowned man found floating in the Rondout creek this morning had been identified as John Zylar, the Polish laborer employed by the Knickerbocker Ice Company, who had been missing from his boarding house on East Pierpont street, since April 9.

Has Auto Hearse.

Undertaker N. D. J. Murphy has added to his equipment a handsome automobile hearse with a light gray body. The hearse attracts much favorable attention.

SENSE ABOUT COAL AND WOOD

What the Substitute for Coal is Really Worth and Why and Where It Should Be Used.

Frequent and persistent warnings have gone forth from practically every source that next winter's coal supply must be bought early. The earlier the order the better chance for obtaining a needed supply, fuel administrators all through the state have argued.

Now to top this all off, a Washington dispatch of yesterday's date contains the announcement by the fuel administration that the country faces a coal shortage of 75,000,000 tons next winter. Conservation measures are being hurriedly mapped out and New England has been called upon to cut all the fire wood that can be gathered against a fuel famine.

Announcement of the shortage may be regarded as serious. Local communities did not suffer to any great extent last winter from lack of coal but the probability now faces them. There's plenty of wood in New York state that can be cut for fuel. New England should not be called upon to cut it all. Because of the heavy demand for coal, particularly for commercial uses with more and more factories being commandeered for government war work which must be kept going even to the possible inconvenience of domestic users of coal, steps should be taken to alleviate the threatened shortage wherever possible. Farmers are frequently situated so they can profitably supply fuel from their woodlands and thus relieve to some extent the demand for coal.

Manufacturers cannot readily substitute wood for coal; neither can city people in a good many cases. But in the rural districts it would be practicable and if carried out would mean a big saving in coal. The change could more readily be made where the wood is hauled by team rather than railroad. Wood is cheaper than coal as fuel and in a good many buildings would give more heat.

In the matter of heating value, the standard cord of well-seasoned hickory, ash, elm, locust, cherry, birch or oak is approximately equal to one ton of anthracite coal. In the softer woods, however, such as cedar, basswood or poplar, it would take a cord and a half to give the same amount of heat.

With coal per ton hovering about the $9 mark, consumers can afford to pay an equal amount for a cord of hard wood, authorities on the subject declare. Soft wood for fuel purposes, however, should not cost more than $4.50 a cord. Of course coal is the more convenient fuel but if coal becomes as scarce as there is some reason now to believe that it cannot be secured in sufficient quantities, the consumer may have to pay higher prices for wood.

Federal authorities are urging that wood is a profitable farm crop. It is a much less perishable crop than many which the farmer raises, and the prices which cordwood will likely bring this year offer an opportunity for the farmer to improve his woodland.

Farmers who think of adding wood to their crops in attempting to relieve what may become a serious situation, might receive some good suggestions by getting in touch with the state forester. Communities threatened with a shortage of coal might do well to stimulate cutting of wood.

The ancients lacked buttons—one wonders, indeed, how they got along without them, but evidently they possessed some of modern pattern, such as those with which we fasten our cuffs and collars. KINGSTON, N. Y., APRIL 26, 1918.

Germany's bullying of Holland has been marked since the beginning of the war and Holland's neutrality up to this time would have been impossible and her territory would not have remained inviolate had she not mobilized her army as soon as Belgium was invaded and called attention to the fact that she was ready again to sacrifice her own soil by opening the dikes in order to call the assistance of the sea in repelling invasion. Holland has made sincere efforts to remain neutral and her task has been difficult. Undoubtedly she has profited financially by the war because she has been enabled to deal with Germany and with the other belligerents. At the same time she has been forced to keep her army mobilized and to pay the expense of caring for thousands of Belgian refugees who were driven to Dutch shelter from the moment that Germany invaded Belgium, and in caring for thousands of Germans whom the laws governing neutrals required her to look after. To Germany, Holland is merely a strip of rich country whose neutrality was desirable during the early stages of the war because thereby supplies could be procured which would be unobtainable in any other way. After her neutrality was no longer needed, Germany could pluck this wealthy little nation and hang it on the Kaiser's scap belt, according to German plans. The free transmission of sand and gravel through Holland to Belgium is demanded by Germany and the Holland statesmen admit that with the appearance of German cavalry along the Westphalian border, the situation so far as Holland is concerned is most serious. There is sufficient Holland Dutch blood disseminated throughout Ulster county to cause more than usual interest to be taken in Holland's future action and the career of no European neutral since the war began has been so thoroughly discussed in many Ulster county homes as that of Holland.

Curtailment of the manufacture of passenger automobiles to twenty-five per cent of the normal output, as planned by the War Industries Board and the Fuel Administration, will tend largely to place automobile riding again in the class of luxuries. The output was reduced voluntarily by manufacturers thirty per cent and further curtailment of production by another forty-five per cent will leave but little room for manufacturers to fill orders. Automobile manufacture in America has gained such proportions in the past few years that distinction lay less in owning a pleasure car than in not owning one. A certain percentage of cars are continually going to the junk heap, other cars are being disposed of in order to be replaced by newer or better cars, and all the time there has been an increased demand for cars of the pleasure type for ordinary long distance traffic in business and the professions. It is safe to say that a majority of the pleasure type cars are used more for pleasure than for business purposes, so that an curtailing production of passenger cars the Government is simply cutting out luxuries in order to lend greater efficiency to war time necessities. General automobile production will not be restricted to twenty-five per cent of the normal output by any means because auto trucks will be required more than ever before for long distance hauling of commodities ordinarily shipped by railroad whose shipment by rail under present conditions must be delayed or entirely stopped, in order that there may be no delay with war shipments. It is safe to assume that there will continue to be a demand for used passenger cars and owners of such cars in Ulster county may find profit in them before the war ends.

It has been unofficially estimated that this country, by doing its utmost can put three million soldiers in France within twelve months. Whether this is impossible or not, an effort to approximate such a performance at all costs is demanded. The need is made plainer every day by the situation on the west front, where German superiority in numbers is forcing the British army into slow retreat. The need is shown more clearly still in England's own call to her every citizen between 18 and 50 years. The present situation was not foreseen at either London, Paris or Washington, and therefore it was at first agreed that during the first year America should chiefly devote herself to sending food and supplies to her allies. This plan was somewhat modified later by the call from France, but our preparations have not been such as to meet the present urgent demand for troops in vast numbers. The next few months may witness a more rapid drafting process and the building of new cantonments as well as the speeding up of ship production. Larger plans and greater expedition will be needed if the suggested numbers are to be sent to France within a year.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

BIL—"And you think fishing is healthy exercise?" GIL—"Sure thing." "Where does the exercise come in?" "Digging the worms."—Yonkers Statesman.

Doctor—"Your daughter, madame, is suffering from constitutional inertia." The Girl—"There, ma! And you've been saying I was simply lazy."—Boston Transcript.

"Who's in the parlor?" "Mr. Fluddab, miss." "I am not at home to him, Fia." "Yes, miss. And the box of bonbons he has with him—are you at home to that?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"Why did you discharge your cook?" "She said she wouldn't be reprimanded." "Did she express herself to that effect?" "Yes, but what she really said was, 'I won't take no sass from nobody.'"—Birmingham Age-Herald.

"Smith was telling the other night of the awful trouble he had one time when he was shipwrecked in getting away from a man-eating shark." "Yes, but did he ever tell you how he succeeded in dodging his wife when she was after him for money for a bargain-hunting shopping trip?"—Baltimore American.

Matrimonial Repartee.

The conjugal dispute waxed loud and furious. Mrs. Blank said: "Yes, yes; it was so!" and Mr. Blank said: "Pooh, pooh! It was not so!" In the end came tears. Then Mrs. Blank fell to reproaches. "I was reading one of your old letters, James, today," she sobbed, "and you said in it that you would rather live in endless torment with me than in bliss by yourself."

"Well," granted Blank, "I got my wish."—Minneapolis Tribune.

Whoppers.

Two soldiers, an Irishman and an Englishman, having met in Flanders, began to talk of the hairbreadth escapes they had in battle. "Well," said the Englishman, "one day in the height of an engagement a shell took the hair off my head. Now, what do you think of that for a hair-cut?"

"Sure," said Pat, "when I was in a battle a bullet from one of them Maxims whizzed by me and took off every hair on my face. What do you think of that for a close shave?"—Exchange.

That Was Different.

Fierce anger revealed itself in Arnold's eyes as he talked. "I tell you, if I ever come in contact with Bill Taylor I'll thrash him so his own wife won't recognize him. He's going around telling that I beat him out of $10 in a poker game."

"You're wrong there, Al, I heard the remark myself. He said you beat him out of $10,000 in a wheat deal." "Oh, well, that's different. I hardly thought Taylor was the type of man to go around telling stories that reflected on my character."

Plain War Talks.

Exceedingly plain speech will be employed in discussing the question, "Should an outlaw nation be punished?" This will be the topic of the sermon of Dr. T. H. Baragwanath in the St. James Church on Sunday night. The colossal war is profoundly affecting thought and life, and it is safe to say that more people are thinking, and thinking seriously, than ever before in our history. The large congregation present in spite of the storm last Sunday night is evidence that people are not tired of war topics. And why should they be when our liberties and the freedom of the world are in grave peril? The question is this: Is Germany guilty? If so, then what is to be the attitude of the rest of the world to a nation that has violated the laws of God and man? The cause of justice demands very plain speech.

Father and the boys all serve

One fights; the others produce and save

PRODUCING and saving are less spectacular, but not less important than fighting. The men at the front must have things to eat, to wear, to fight with; the only place they can come from is America; the only way they can come is through your efforts.

You can serve and save in the way you buy clothes. Get good clothes made of all wool fabrics, well tailored. They wear so well and last so long that they save materials and men to make the things our soldiers need.

One way we can serve and save is to see that you get such clothes when you come here. That's why we recommend Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes; they're well made of all-wool fabrics; a positive guarantee of satisfaction goes with every suit or overcoat.

BOY SCOUTS AND THIRD LIBERTY LOAN

The Boy Scouts of Kingston, like the Boy Scouts all over this land will participate in an intensive campaign to help in the sale of the Third Liberty Loan Bonds. They will act in accordance with the request of President Wilson that they be "the gleaners, following the reapers," seeing to it that no corner, nor out-of-the-way place is missed in the opportunity to buy these bonds at this time. This intensive campaign will begin here tomorrow instead of today, when the boys will meet the Liberty Ball at the Glenelg Hill and bring it to the armory to remain overnight. They will, the next morning take it to Rhinebeck, there to pass it on to the Boy Scouts of that village. Since the real selling campaign does not begin until tomorrow, it is obvious that the Scouts could not yet make any report, the statement having been published that they had not made such report.

This campaign will last from Saturday to next week Saturday. It is to be noted that no Boy Scouts are expected to ask for excuses for absence from school to do this work, as it can well be done after school hours. It should be further noted that the name of every Boy Scout has been sent to National Headquarters, as the National organization has practically pledged the government 100 per cent participation on the part of the boys. It is therefore to be hoped that not a Scout in Kingston will be responsible for the local organization's failing to keep this pledge.

The treasury department of the government has prepared, (and the same has been received at Scout Headquarters on Broadway) a simple, direct-to-a-boy manual of rules concerning this campaign, and every Scout is expected to provide himself with such manual and to carefully study the rules, that there may be no confusion or misunderstandings. According to these rules, every boy must be registered at National Headquarters to participate in this bond-selling campaign. The Boy Scouts are not to attempt to sell bonds in banks, post offices, etc. Blanks have been prepared by the treasury department, exactly the same shape and size as those used by other committees, for convenience in filing. At the bottom of each such blank, there is a slip to be signed by the bank receiving the same, which will be returned to Scout Headquarters. Each Scout must return his blanks to the Scoutmaster each night and the Scoutmasters must prepare to receive these blanks so that they may be carried in to the banks when they open the next morning. Each night slips will be sent on to National Headquarters, by the Scout Executive. Every Scout must make it plain to each customer that the initial payment on the bonds must be made before May 4th.

For this campaign, no particular territory will be assigned but the entire city will be an open field in which the Scouts may do their gleaning. The different troops are urged to plan and carry out novel and unique schemes for stimulating the sale of bonds, as for instance, Troop 5 will have a tent in front of their quarters at St. John's parish house on Wall street, where they will be prepared to sell bonds. And by the way, Troop 1 of Accord, which comes under the jurisdiction of the city, has under a tent and will take the same to different nearby villages during the time of the campaign, thus covering quite a section.

For this third Liberty Bond Sale, the request for the aid of Boy Scouts has been almost a demand, and it is fully expected that the boys will be right on the job every minute. During the last sale, $62,400 worth of bonds were sold by the Boy Scouts of Kingston, 35 Scouts receiving Scout emblems from the Government, for selling more than ten bonds each, while 53 Scouts took part in the sale. It is hoped that every Scout (there are now somewhere in the neighborhood of 100 in the city) will succeed in selling at least 10, $100 bonds, thus bringing the Scout sale up to $100,000, for this drive. While many bonds sold by the Scouts at the last campaign have already been sold to other parties this time, still it is felt that the friends of the boys will see to it that they make good on this sale also.

Scout Headquarters, telephone 1680 will be ready to give any further information regarding to Scout sale of the third Liberty Loan Bonds to those really interested in this phase of the sale.

HAVE BOUGHT THE ASHOKAN GARAGE

William D. Ryan of 453 Washington avenue, and Carl Mulhall of Saugerties, have bought the Ashokan Garage at 779 Broadway, of Benjamin Van Steenburgh and took possession today. The new garage firm will be known as Ryan & Mulhall. Both are well known young men in the automobile business and undoubtedly will meet with success in their venture. They will do general repair work as well as renting out cars. They will have the agency for the Cole and Vellie cars.

GERMANS TAKE KEMMEL HILL

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, April 26.—The Germans have captured Kemmel Hill (on the West Flanders front), according to a Central News despatch received this afternoon.

Kemmel Hill (which lies immediately to the west of the lower end of Messines Ridge, in Belgium) was an important key position and was bravely defended by British and French troops.

After a bloody struggle with overwhelming forces in their favor the Germans gained a footing on the ridge last night.

The German gain was made at a tremendous sacrifice.

LAKE KATRINE.

Lake Katrine, April 26.—Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Brewer of Newburgh were the guests of Mrs. David Kieffer for the week end last week.

A play entitled "If I Had a Million" was given at the Lake Katrine Grange Hall Wednesday evening. This play was given for the benefit of the Second Reformed Church in Kingston and was well attended and thoroughly enjoyed. It was repeated here Wednesday evening and the play was a success in every way.

On account of the rainy weather, the attendance at Sunday School was not as large as usual. Much interest is being shown in the red and blue contest, and although the reds and blues have been very close, last Sunday the secretary announced a gain of twenty for the reds, so the blues will have to rally their forces to beat the reds.

Thodore Brink spent a few days in New York city and Brooklyn recently and attended a meeting of the Holland Society. He had the honor of being elected vice president of the society.

Miss Mamie Carle of Kingston spent Sunday with her mother, Mrs. E. Sutton.

Charles Henninger, who has been visiting his brother, Private William Henninger, at Camp Wadsworth, Spartanburg, S. C., returned home on Wednesday, as he expects to join the army very soon.

Mrs. William C. Kingman spent Monday at Lake Katrine with her sister.

Miss Eleanor Shaw and Miss Mabel

Munson, who have been spending the winter at Fort Miami, Florida, returned home last week.

Early-Day Buttons.

The ancients lacked buttons—one wonders, indeed, how they got along without them, but evidently they possessed stabs of modern pattern, such as those with which we fasten our cuffs and collars. And, in truth, they did even have a kind of button (though not sewn on), which fastened garments with a pin and hook exactly in the way our brooches and clasp pins operate.—Exchange.

Letters.

It is estimated that about two-thirds of all the letters carried by the postal service of the world are written, sent to and read by English-speaking people.

ST. STEPHEN'S CHOIR AT HOLY CROSS

The student choir of St. Stephen's College, Annandale, will be present at the service next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at Holy Cross Church, on the invitation of the parish, and will chant the service, after which Gounod's "Gallia" will be sung under the direction of the Rev. Cuthbert Fowler, musical director of St. Stephen's College. This choir has made a specialty of plain song, the traditional music of the church, and their chanting of the psalter as it is sung every day in the college chapel, affords a good example of this type of ecclesiastical music. The "Gallia," a short cantata by Charles Gounod, has a double significance at this time. This year is the centenary of Gounod's birth, June 17, 1818, and the great French composer's works are therefore appropriately sung as a tribute to his memory. The "Gallia" was written in 1870. The words are taken from the first chapter of the Lamentations of Jeremiah, a portrayal of Jerusalem stricken by the Babylonians. This picture Gounod applies to his own country, despoiled by the Prussians in the Franco-Prussian War. It is sung on this occasion in commemoration for France and Belgium, torn and bleeding today, again under the hand of Prussia. At the conclusion of the service another of Gounod's compositions will be sung, the Domine, Salvam Fac (O God, Save the State), from the Messe des Orpheonistes. The preacher will be the Rev. J. I. B. Larned of St. John's Church. The collection, outside the regular envelopes, will be used to defray the traveling expenses of the choir.

WOODSTOCK.

Woodstock, April 25.—At the Firemen's Hall on Wednesday evening, the Rev. Samuel C. Benson addressed the first of a series of mass meetings being arranged for the season by the Patriotic Service League. Mr. Benson was announced as one of the foremost speakers in the country upon the war situation and the needs of the Allied nations. Such he proved himself to be.

His graphic presentation of the purposes and methods of Germany, his grasp of the basic causes of the conflict, the sketching of his own experience at the front, his sure prophecy of the ultimate victory of those fighting on the side of God and humanity; all delivered with an eloquence born of a passion for justice, made an address thrilling and compelling in the extreme.

He was greeted by an audience that literally jammed the hall to the outer doors. An audience which every moment enthusiastic, found itself on its feet cheering when the speaker closed and the sale of Liberty Loan Bonds began.

In opening the meeting Captain Jenkinson spoke briefly of the work of the league.

Preceding the address Miss Natalie Jacobs sang, as but few soloists do, the national anthem.

It is not possible to speak of those classes of people or of those communities in the town of Woodstock which are loyal. The townspeople are one in their acceptance of the duty of the hour.

Woodstock is giving of itself gladly in this day of need. The membership of the Patriotic Service League is rapidly mounting into the hundreds. Through it the town is completely organized for war service. Let no one fail to join.

The Ladies' Aid Society will hold their regular monthly meeting on Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Hiram Clearwater of Creek Locks.

The KITCHEN CABINET

The secret of success in life is for a man to be ready for his opportunity when it comes.—Darsell.

The one who does little things is always ready to do the big thing better.

EAT LESS FOOD.

There are few people who would not feel better, look better and live longer if they stopped eating before they are quite satisfied. The pernicious habit of eating after ones stomach is "enough" is the cause of many ills that burden the flesh. Nitrogenous foods have a process of putrefaction which is peculiar to that food, other kinds of foods ferment but such food as meat, fish, eggs, cheese, and such protein vegetables as peas and beans decompose and the by-products formed are more or less poisonous to human beings.

The difference between fermentation and putrefaction is shown in the digestion. Vegetable foods may ferment and cause irritation but in the form of poisons which are taken up by the blood stream just as is the food, these poisons cause auto-intoxication. The vast majority of people who suffer in this way, suffer because of overeating. An eatless meal once or twice a week, would be not inappropriate to follow a wheelless day.

Fletcher, the dietician, in his wonderful books on living has discovered that the simple art of mastication, which is a much alighted if not a lost one, is the secret of good health. Our loyalty in these stirring times may teach us the value of lessening our food supply. The over-padded individual who denies herself candy and sweets because of her patriotism will be rewarded in the happy results to herself. This will be true in cutting out one-seventh of our meat, one-sixth of our fat, and one-fourth each of sugar and white flour. This self-denial will not only help us physically but its influence must be felt in other ways. The individual who cannot say "no" for his stomach's sake will not stand very firm on higher demands.

There is one important thing that all mothers of growing children should consider, that they should not be restricted as to food, for they need it for the daily activities and to promote growth.

KINGSTON, N. Y., APRIL 26, 1918.

Germany's bullying of Holland has been marked since the beginning of the war and Holland's neutrality up to this time would have been impossible and her territory would not have remained inviolate had she not mobilized her army as soon as Belgium was invaded and called attention to the fact that she was ready again to sacrifice her own soil by opening the dikes in order to call the assistance of the sea in repelling invasion. Holland has made sincere efforts to remain neutral and her task has been difficult. Undoubtedly she has profited financially by the war because she has been enabled to deal with Germany and with the other belligerents. At the same time she has been forced to keep her army mobilized and to pay the expense of caring for thousands of Belgian refugees who were driven to Dutch shelter from the moment that Germany invaded Belgium, and in caring for thousands of Germans whom the laws governing neutrals required her to look after. To Germany, Holland is merely a strip of rich country whose neutrality was desirable during the early stages of the war because thereby supplies could be procured which would be unobtainable in any other way. After her neutrality was no longer needed, Germany could pluck this wealthy little nation and hang it on the Kaiser's scalp belt, according to German plans. The free transmission of sand and gravel through Holland to Belgium is demanded by Germany and the Holland statesmen admit that with the appearance of German cavalry along the Westphalian border, the situation so far as Holland is concerned is most serious. There is sufficient Holland Dutch blood disseminated throughout Ulster county to cause more than usual interest to be taken in Holland's future action and the career of no European neutral since the war began has been so thoroughly discussed in many Ulster county homes as that of Holland.

Curtailling of the manufacture of passenger automobiles to twenty-five per cent of the normal output, as planned by the War Industries Board and the Fuel Administration, will tend largely to place automobile riding again in the class of luxuries. The output was reduced voluntarily by manufacturers thirty per cent and further curtailment of production by another forty-five per cent will leave but little room for manufacturers to fill orders. Automobile manufacture in America has gained such proportions in the past few years that distinction lay less in owning a pleasure car than in not owning one. A certain percentage of cars are continually going to the junk heap, other cars are being disposed of in order to be replaced by newer or better cars, and all the time there has been an increased demand for years of the pleasure type for ordinary long distance traffic in business and the professions. It is safe to say that a majority of the pleasure type cars are used more for pleasure than for business purposes, so that an curtailing production of passenger cars the Government is simply curtailing out luxuries in order to lend greater efficiency to war time necessities. General automobile production will not be restricted to twenty-five per cent of the normal output by any means because auto trucks will be required more than ever before for long distance hauling of commodities ordinarily shipped by railroad whose shipment by rail under present conditions must be delayed or entirely stopped, in order that there may be no delay with war shipments. It is safe to assume that there will continue to be a demand for used passenger cars and owners of such cars in Ulster county may find profit in them before the war ends.

It has been unofficially estimated that this country, by doing its utmost, can put three million soldiers in France within twelve months. Whether this is impossible or not, an effort to approximate such a performance at all costs is demanded. The need is made plainer every day by the situation on the west front, where German superiority in numbers is forcing the British army into slow retreat. The need is shown more clearly still in England's own rail to her every citizen between 16

and 50 years. The present situation was not foreseen at either London, Paris or Washington, and therefore it was at first agreed that during the first year America should chiefly devote herself to sending food and supplies to her allies. This plan was somewhat modified later by the call from France, but our preparations have not been such as to meet the present urgent demand for troops in vast numbers. The next few months may witness a more rapid drafting process and the building of new can-tonments as well as the speeding up of ship production. Larger plans and greater expedition will be needed if the suggested numbers are to be sent to France within a year.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

BIM—"And you think fishing is healthy exercise?" GIL—"Sure thing." "Where does the exercise come in?" "Digging the worms."—Yonkers Statesman.

Doctor—"Your daughter, madame, is suffering from constitutional inertia." The Girl—"There, ma! And you've been saying I was simply lazy."—Boston Transcript.

"Who's in the parlor?" "Mr. Flubdub, miss." "I am not at home to him, Pifi." "Yes, miss. And the box of bonbons he has with him—are you at home to that?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"Why did you discharge your cook?" "She said she wouldn't be reprimanded." "Did she express herself to that effect?" "Yes, but what she really said was, 'I won't take no sass from nobody.'"—Birmingham Age-Herald.

"Smith was telling the other night of the awful trouble he had one time when he was shipwrecked in getting away from a man-eating shark." "Yes, but did he ever tell you how he succeeded in dodging his wife when she was after him for money for a bargain-hunting shopping trip?"—Baltimore American.

Matrimonial Repartee.

The conjugal dispute waxed loud and furious. Mrs. Blank said: "Yes, yes; it was so!" and Mr. Blank said: "Pooh, pooh! It was not so!" In the end came tears. Then Mrs. Blank fell to ragoing. "I was reading one of your old letters, James, today," she sobbed, "and you said in it that you would rather live in endless torment with me than in bliss by yourself." "Well," granted Blank, "I got my wish."—Minneapolis Tribune.

Whoppers.

Two soldiers, an Irishman and an Englishman, having met in Flanders, began to talk of the hairbreath escapades they had in battle.

"Well," said the Englishman, "one day in the height of an engagement a shell took the hair of my head. Now, what do you think of that for a haircut?"

"Sure," said Pat, "when I was in a battle a bullet from one of them Maxims whizzed by me and took off every hair off my face. What do you think of that for a close shave?"—Exchange.

That Was Different.

Phoebe anger revealed itself in Arnold's eyes as he talked.

"I tell you, if I ever come in contact with Bill Taylor I'll thrash him so his own wife won't recognize him. He's going around telling that I beat him out of $10 in a poker game." "You're wrong there, Al. I heard the remark myself. He said you beat him out of $10,000 in a wheat deal." "Oh, well, that's different. I hardly thought Taylor was the type of man to go around telling stories that reflected on my character."

Plain War Talks.

Exceedingly plain speech will be employed in discussing the question, "Should an outlaw nation be punished?" This will be the topic of the sermon of Dr. T. H. Baragwanath in the St. John's Church on Sunday night. The colored war is profoundly affecting thought and life, and it is safe to say that more people are thinking, and thinking seriously, than ever before in our history. The large congregation present in spite of the storm last Sunday night is evidence that people are not tired of war topics. And why should they be? The war is the greatest event of the world, and it is in grave peril? The question is, is Germany guilty? If so, then what is to be the attitude of the rest of the world to a nation that has violated the laws of God and man? The cases of justice demands very plain speech.

Father and the boys all serve
One fights; the others produce and save

PRODUCING and saving are less spectacular, but not less important than fighting. The men at the front must have things to eat, to wear, to fight with; the only place they can come from is America; the only way they can come is through your efforts.

You can serve and save in the way you buy clothes. Get good clothes made of all wool fabrics, well tailored. They wear so well and last so long that they save materials and men to make the things our soldiers need.

One way we can serve and save is to see that you get such clothes when you come here. That's why we recommend Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes; they're well made of all-wool fabrics; a positive guarantee of satisfaction goes with every suit or overcoat.

COUGHLIN WRITES FROM FRANCE

Postmaster W. C. DeWitt has received an interesting letter from Private Edward Coughlin, 1st Company, M. M. Regiment, S. C., Air Service, A. E. F., New York. Private Coughlin writes:

Every Friday night being the time set aside by the Y. M. C. A. for us to write home, I am here amongst a group of a few hundred others all busily engaged in the art of hand writing. These little huts are all on the same principle, comprising a stage, piano, canteen and decorated with flags of the Allies. Benches and movable writing tables take up the floor space, the tables being dispensed with on nights set aside for entertainment.

Last night was musical night and had players of high repute, because the Y. M. C. A. man told us and although musical music reigned supreme we enjoyed them none the less because we knew they must be good. Our company is going to have a minstrel show which should meet with great approval as the southerners we have won't need much urging to get away with that colored style of talk, and all the boys appreciate any comedy.

It's not as lonesome as it might seem to be over here, and it's hard for me to realize I am so far away from the states as I am, because something is doing all the time, and as our time is pretty well occupied pay days come and go quickly.

Having travelled considerably before getting to our destination camp there are many interesting coincidences happened and I would like to go farther in detail about some of the cities and their whereabouts but it's against the rules and regulations so I'll keep it all to myself until I reach the Colonial City once again.

The camp that we are now in is an aviation camp and cadets are flying in their machines daily and attract a good many pedestrians from town to watch their manoeuvres, who gaze at them as strangers do at the tall buildings in New York. These are all American flyers and are from all over the states. We think every state is represented here in camp from coast to coast.

The favorite pastime here is bicycle riding and they do seem to enjoy it. Women who look to be sixty and over ride as well as those thirty years their junior. On a good many they make the feet go the opposite direction that we do when we ride, but they go forward. Everything seems to be just the opposite of things in the states, and bicycles are no exception.

They even speak a different language than we do at home, and we do have to make some gestures to make ourselves understood. If they say something in French to us and we don't understand what they mean we come back at them in English so they won't have anything on us.

I am studying it in spare time and after making a few funny faces I make a noise. There are several French fellows in our company and we often get customers for them.

Tomorrow we play a game of baseball and you will probably see the score in the N. Y. Sunday American, weather permitting.

It is already after 8 o'clock and as we arise at 5 a. m. I am going to close.

MAKES STRONG PLEA FOR CO-OPERATION

Mr. Howland Gives Helpful Lecture on Industrial Conservation—Team Work Essential in Solving Industrial and War Problems.

Under the direction of Kingston Chamber of Commerce, Ellis L. Howland of New York city gave a lecture entitled "Conservation of American Industry," at the Elks' auditorium Thursday night at a smoker and get together rally.

Mr. Howland proved to be an interesting speaker and thoroughly conversant with his topic. His lecture was listened to with close attention and was received with applause. The rally, which was also featured by an informal smoker, was well attended.

Mr. Howland was introduced by Joseph M. Herbert, president of the chamber.

A brief, but interesting address was made by R. E. Leighton, who spoke along the lines of the co-ordination and co-operation of Chamber of Commerce resources. He made a plea for the co-operation of every member of the chamber with the officers and directors, and the co-operation of every citizen in the work that is being carried on by the chamber.

Mr. Leighton emphasized the value of team work. He also spoke in praise of the work that was accomplished by those who labored hard and unselfishly in recent years for the good welfare of Kingston and said that the visions of those who worked so hard were being brought to fruition.

Address of Mr. Howland.

"It seems particularly fitting," said Mr. Howland, "that my subject is industrial conservation, for, judging from your president's remarks, I believe that this work closely harmonizes with the work and purposes of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce."

"Stripped of all details the industrial conservation movement is simply an effort to bring home to the people of every community a realization of the fact that industry is a national and community asset to be fostered and encouraged by the common weal and not a selfish possession of national properties."

"Misunderstanding and ignorance is our greatest menace, misunderstanding of class towards class—misunderstanding of the fundamental economic law—misunderstanding of our mutuality and friendships—misunderstanding of the fact that we are all human and are actuated by human motives; whether we are rich or poor."

"Some of this misunderstanding has been cleared up. We have come to see the business man as he is, a great national and community asset—a force for national security and prosperity. This war has shown us the power of co-operation and co-ordination of industry. Let us follow the captains of industry rather than the agitators of discontent."

"No man ever helped the world by handing out grievances and promoting antagonism."

Mr. Howland paid a high compliment to the loyalty of the business men, the professional men, the mechanics, and the laborers from every walk of life, who in this war have responded so nobly to the call of service for Uncle Sam in his fight for democracy and freedom.

All selfish interests have vanished and every factor available for national defense has been freely offered. Men, fortunes, plants, patents, and lives have been, and are being given in the great cause.

About the War.

Part of Mr. Howland's lecture had to do with America's part in the war, and his remarks along these lines were very stirring.

"These thoughts of industrial conservation come home more clearly in these days when the world is in such a chaotic condition," said Mr. Howland. "It is inevitable that the present war should have come about, although none of us expected it, in these twentieth century days of presumed enlightenment."

"The very movement when civilization is congratulating itself that the panacea of war has been discovered there crops out in mid-Europe a recrudescence of militarism and terrorism which regards as nothing the rights that we know—the privileges of the individual and the enjoyment of human freedom, and exalts the domination of the despot as the sum total of human hopes."

"The withdrawal of forty million men directly and perhaps five hundred million more indirectly from the energies of peace and progress, and turning them toward work of death and destruction represents an economic loss that the world can never answer."

"There can come from it absolutely no commensurate blessing and it ought to be a source of pride to every citizen of this country that America has entered this world war, not with a hope for an inch of conquered territory, or a dollar of indemnity, or any other selfish motive; but purely in the defense of those principles of human freedom that have made America the champion of the world's idealism."

"As I understand it, it is this same principle of the perpetuation of the free field for individual and community effort and co-operation to uphold and maintain national prosperity and progress, that is the fundamental hope of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce and kindred organizations."

Ancient "Breadfather."

Of what great importance the loaf, which before 1200 was the name of bread, was a daily food can be inferred from its relation with the word "lord." For lord, A. S. blaford (blaf, bread, loaf; weard, a keeper), is probably a contraction of blaf-weard, literally "loaf-ward" and therefore, originally signified the keeper or dispenser of bread—in short, the breadfather, to whom the members of the family had to apply for their daily bread.

Corrory will be assigned but the entire city will be an open field in which the Scouts may do their gleaming.

The different troops are urged to plan and carry out novel and unique schemes for stimulating the sale of bonds, as for instance, Troop 5 will have a tent in front of their quarters at St. John's parish house on Wall street, where they will be prepared to sell bonds. And by the way, Troop 1 of Accord, which comes under the jurisdiction of the city, has such a tent and will take the same during the time of the campaign, thus covering quite a section.

For this third Liberty Bond Sale, the request for the aid of Boy Scouts has been almost a demand, and it is fully expected that the boys will be right on the job every minute. During the last sale, $62,400 worth of bonds were sold by the Boy Scouts of Kingston. 25 Scouts receiving Scout emblems from the Government, for selling more than ten bonds each, while 53 Scouts took part in the sale. It is hoped that every Scout, (there are now somewhere in the neighborhood of 100 in the city) will succeed in selling at least 10, $100 bonds, thus bringing the Scout sale up to $100,000, for this drive. While many bonds sold by the Scouts at the last campaign have already been sold to other parties this time, still it is felt that the friends of the boys will see to it that they make good on this sale also.

Scout Headquarters, telephone 1850 will be ready to give any further information regarding the sale of the third Liberty Loan Bonds to those really interested in this sale of the sale.

Telegraphers May Strike.

Chicago, April 25.—A walk-out of commercial telegraphers employed by the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies on Monday, as the situation now stands, is inevitable, according to a statement made today by S. J. Koenekamp, international president of the Commercial Telegraphers Union.

Man's Steady Progress.

GLENFORD.

Glenford, April 25.—Mr. and Mrs. William Castle and Little Pearl Emberson from Rifton have been spending a few days with John Castle and family.

Richard Leonard, Sr., returned from New York City on Monday, having attended the funeral of his brother, John, of that city.

Glenford is surely getting "up-to-date." J. W. Castle, T. S. Lennox and William Russell having purchased automobiles.

ford Tuesday, having spent the past two weeks in Catskill and thereabouts.

J. V. Moore and mother paid a business trip to Kingston Tuesday.

Mrs. William Castle and Pearl Emberson called on Mrs. S. B. Moore on Tuesday.

Mrs. Katherine Hummel of Schoenectady, N. Y., is visiting her brother, John Castle and family.

GOVERNMENT TAKES OVER THE GARDNER

Yacht Now Doing Harbor Work in New York—Yacht Kingston Has Been Sold—Other Navigation Notes.

The steam yacht E. B. Gardner has been taken over by the government and is now engaged in government harbor work in New York harbor. Captain Frank Roosa is still at the helm. The Gardner last year was engaged by a sight seeing concern to make trips around New York harbor. Before that time she piled between Rondout and Glasco.

The steam yacht Kingston has been sold to parties in New York City by B. Morris Tremper. The Kingston formerly ran on the Glasco-Rondout route, but for the past few years has been berthed in New York.

Henry Taylor, chef of the Lake Katrine Inn the past season, has resigned and accepted a position as chef on the steamer Ulster. For the first time in the memory of those who are below the half century mark in age, regular service by boat between Catskill and Hudson will be interrupted this season by the withdrawal of the little steamer Isabella from the route. The Catskill Mail states that it is learned on good authority that under existing conditions the proposition is not a promising one, and the difficulty in procuring the services of an engineer and a sufficient amount of coal of the proper size makes it doubtful whether regular service could be maintained in any event.

VICTORY MENUS.

These menus, planned to conserve time, labor and money, to save the foods that are scarce and use those of which there is an abundance, are Victory Menus in more senses than one. They are prepared by the Department of Home Economics of the State College of Agriculture and endorsed by the New York State Food Commission.

Friday.

Breakfast—Apple sauce, nutmeg seasoning, potato pancakes, maple syrup.

Lunch or Supper—Potato cutlets, green pepper sauce, rolled oat bread, stewed prunes, maple oat cake.

Dinner—Broiled fresh mackerel, sauce tartare, diced potatoes, chopped parsley, creamed young carrots, chocolate blanc mange.

Milk for the children to drink at each meal.

(*May be omitted and still leave a balanced meal.) Make cornstarch save wheat for all thickening purposes. Much flour is wasted daily in the thickening of soups, sauces, gravies and puddings where cornstarch would serve. Here is one simple way in which further to cut down our use of wheat flour. For thickening purposes, one-third less cornstarch than flour is required.

Potato Pancakes.

6 raw grated potatoes (2 cups), 1 teaspoon salt, 2 whole eggs, 1 tablespoon flour, pinch of baking powder, a little milk.

Peel large potatoes; grate, drain, and add other ingredients, beating the eggs well and mixing with the rest. Drop by spoonfuls on a hot, buttered griddle, in small cakes, turn and brown on both sides. Serve with apple sauce.

Green Pepper Sauce.

Make a thin or medium white sauce. Add green pepper cut in strips or diced and cook until the pepper is done.

Potato Cutlets.

1 cup mashed or chopped potato, 1 cup bread crumbs, 1 cup ground boiled soy beans or any beans, ½ cup tomato juice, 2 sweet red peppers, minced, pepper.

Combine the ingredients and form the mixture into shape like cutlets. Dip them into beaten egg, roll them in bread crumbs, place on a greased tin and brown in a moderate oven. Serve the cutlets with pimiento, green pepper or horseradish sauce.

Recipes for any of the dishes in these menus which cannot be found in cook books, may be had by writing to the Department of Home Economics, State College of Agriculture, Ithaca, N. Y.

Composition of Mica.

Mica, so named from its being easily divided into glistening scales, consists of silica and alumina, associated with magnesia, soda and lime in varying proportions. Thus there are potash mica, consisting of silica, alumina and potash, and magnesia mica, in which the alumina is partially replaced by magnesia, passing—as the proportion of magnesia increases—into soft talc, which is chiefly composed of silica and magnesia.

Optimistic Thought.

Retribution is not always dealt out to every man according to his deeds.

WOMEN TO ENROLL IN PARTIES MAY 25

May 25th is enrollment day throughout the state, when women may enroll under party banners in order to participate in party primaries and have a voice in the nomination of officers. Governor Whitman has signed the bill providing for the enrollment of women on the fourth Saturday in May.

Some Shade in All Lives.

Persons who foolishly conclude that life is all sunshine and roses will when they least expect it, be rudely awakened from this pleasant dream. Each one of us has a certain work to do, certain cares and responsibilities to contend with, and if we think that the Fates are going to spare us from anything that savors of trial or anxiety a gigantic surprise is in store for us.

Where Thin Men Have Advantage.

A thin man has a better chance than a fat one. Women gunning for men occasionally puncture a fat one, but few of them shoot well enough to hit a thin one.—Topeka Capital.

ST. STEPHEN'S CHOIR AT HOLY CROSS

The student choir of St. Stephen's College, Annandale, will be present at the service next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at Holy Cross Church, on the invitation of the parish, and will chant the service, after which Gounod's "Gallia" will be sung under the direction of the Rev. Cuthbert Fowler, musical director of St. Stephen's College. This choir has made a specialty of plain song, the traditional music of the church, and their chanting of the psalter as it is sung every day in the college chapel, affords a good example of this type of ecclesiastical music. The "Gallia," a short cantata by Charles Gounod, has a double significance at this time. This year is the centenary of Gounod's birth, June 17, 1818, and the great French composer's works are therefore appropriately sung as a tribute to his memory. The "Gallia" was written in 1870. The words are taken from the first chapter of the Lamentations of Jeremiah, a portrayal of Jerusalem stricken by the Babylonians. This picture Gounod applies to his own country, despoiled by the Prussians in the Franco-Prussian War. It is sung on this occasion in commemoration for France and Belgium, torn and bleeding today, again under the hand of Prussia. At the conclusion of the service another of Gounod's compositions will be sung, the Domine, Salvam Fac (O God, Save the State), from the Messe des Orpheus. The preacher will be the Rev. J. B. Larned of St. John's Church. The collection, outside the regular envelopes, will be used to defray the traveling expenses of the choir.

WOODSTOCK.

Woodstock, April 25.—At the Firemen's Hall on Wednesday evening, the Rev. Samuel C. Benson addressed the first of a series of mass meetings being arranged for the season by the Patriotic Service League. Mr. Benson was announced as one of the foremost speakers in the country upon the war situation and the needs of the Allied nations. Such he proved himself to be.

His graphic presentation of the purposes and methods of Germany, his grasp of the basic causes of the conflict, the sketching of his own experience at the front, his sure prophecy of the ultimate victory of those fighting on the side of God and humanity, all delivered with an eloquence born of a passion for justice, made an address thrilling and compelling in the extreme.

He was greeted by an audience that literally jammed the hall to the outer doors. An audience which every moment enthusiastic, found itself on its feet cheering when the speaker closed and the sale of Liberty Loan Bonds began.

In opening the meeting Captain Jenkins spoke briefly of the work of the league.

Preceding the address Miss Natalie Jacus sang, as but few soloists do, the national anthem.

It is not possible to speak of those classes of people or of those communities in the town of Woodstock which are loyal. The townspeople are one in their acceptance of the duty of the hour. Woodstock is giving of itself gladly in this day of need.

The membership of the Patriotic Service League is rapidly mounting into the hundreds. Through it the town is completely organized for war service. Let no one fail to join.

BLOOMINGTON.

Bloomington, April 25.—Mr. and Mrs. Julius Epelken of Brooklyn spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Dan, and also visited other relatives in our village.

T. B. Osborn visited his family here the week end.

EVERY PACKAGE YOU EAT OF POST TOASTIES

The KITCHEN CABINET

The secret of success in life is for a man to be ready for his opportunity when it comes.—Darnell.

The one who does little things is always ready to do the big thing better.

EAT LESS FOOD.

There are few people who would not feel better, look better and live longer if they stopped eating before they are quite satisfied. The pernicious habit of eating after ones stomach says "enough" is the cause of many ills that burden the flesh. Nitrogenous foods have a process of putrefaction which is peculiar to that food, other kinds of foods ferment but such food as meat, fish, eggs, cheese, and such protein vegetables as peas and beans decompose and the by-products formed are more or less poisonous to human beings.

The difference between fermentation and putrefaction is shown in the digestion. Vegetable foods may ferment and cause irritation but with animal food the irritation may be in the form of poisons which are taken up by the blood stream just as is the food, these poisons cause auto-intoxication. The vast majority of people who suffer in this way, suffer because of overeating. An endless meal once or twice a week, would be not inappropriate to follow a whetless day.

Fletcher, the dietitian, in his wonderful books on living has discovered that the simple art of mastication, which is a much slighted if not a lost one, is the secret of good health. Our loyalty in these stirring times may teach us the value of lessening our food supply. The over-padded individual who denies herself candy and sweets because of her patriotism will be rewarded in the happy results to herself. This will be true in cutting out one-seventh of our meat, one-fourth of our fat, and one-fourth each of sugar and white flour. This self-denial will not only help us physically but its influence must be felt in other ways. The individual who cannot say "no" for his stomach's sake will not stand very firm on higher demands.

There is one important thing that all mothers of growing children should consider, that they should not be restricted as to food, for they need it for the daily activities and to promote growth.

BRINGS ACTION FOR SEPARATION

Katherine Cole Alleges That Her Husband, Percy Cole, Struck Her With a Shoe and Bed Rail—Some Sensational Testimony.

The action for separation being brought by Katherine Cole against Percy C. Cole was started today before Justice Hasbrouck, at a special term of the supreme court here at the court house.

The following charges are made by Mrs. Cole in her complaint: In or about the year 1913 defendant struck plaintiff without cause or provocation with one of his work shoes, disabling her for several days.

In the spring of 1914 when the plaintiff was cleaning house, defendant struck plaintiff with a side rail of a bed, lacerating and cutting her head.

In June 1917, defendant accused plaintiff of infidelity and when she denied the charge defendant struck plaintiff several blows and knocked her unconscious.

Plaintiff claims that she has always been an obedient and faithful wife, and that the defendant has been absent since July 1, 1917, with intent not to return; and since August 1, 1917, has refused to provide for plaintiff's support.

Plaintiff demands judgment for a separation and that reasonable provision be made for her support and maintenance out of defendant's property, and that plaintiff have such other and further relief as may be just with costs of actions.

Attorneys in the Case.

Judge N. Frank O'Reilly represents Mrs. Cole; Andrew J. Cook and Judge William D. Brinnier, Jr., are appearing for Mr. Cole.

Testimony of Mrs. Cole.

Mrs. Cole was the first witness called this morning and she told of the alleged cruel acts of her husband. According to Mrs. Cole, her husband was not only cruel, but at times was also neglectful, not coming home nights, and not leaving enough money for her support.

Mrs. Cole alleged that while she was at Tannersville that her husband took an automobile owned by her and had it stored in his brother's name, at a garage in Haines Falls. Mrs. Cole said that while she was helping to make out her husband's reports that she found a photograph of a woman in his dress suit case, and had also found either in his dress suit case or in his coat pocket a number of photographs of women.

According to Mrs. Cole, later she met the woman of the photograph found in the dress suit case and invited this woman and her mother to her (Mrs. Cole's) house, and that while they were there this woman's mother said to Cole (the defendant), "I don't know why you should be running around with single girls when you have such a nice home."

Some Sensational Evidence. Much of the testimony of Mrs. Cole, both in direct and cross examination, was of a nature that cannot be published.

A number of other witnesses were called. The case was continued this afternoon.

JUST HEARING THERE IS WAR

A woman living in the Kentucky mountains told a social worker recently, "I hear there is an awful feud going on somewhere? Is it true?"

The fact that there is a war is only just beginning to penetrate those mountain fastnesses.

A woman in one of the rich agricultural districts of an Eastern state is still serving meat every day in the week and white bread every meal. Since the "fifty-fifty" order in buying flour was issued, she was heard to remark: "My pantry shelf is getting loaded down with that breakfast food stuff that I have to buy nowadays and the only way I can get rid of it is to feed it to the chickens."

The fact of war has not yet penetrated their fastnesses.

There are still too many fastnesses where the seriousness of the food problem has not yet seemed to penetrate. They are found in our big cities and in our richest agricultural valleys just as often as in the mountains of Kentucky.

The ignorance of the poor Kentucky woman is pitiful and forgivable, but the indifference of the other woman is lamentable and unpardonable. Unless the conservation cry is heard and heeded by all women, the food problem of America will not be solved.

GERMANS GAIN AT KEMMEL HILL

By Telegraph to The Freeman. London, April 26.—Hard fighting continues along the Picardy and Flanders battle fronts.

The war office stated today that after an all-day struggle on the Baillieu-Holbeke line, the Allied troops were compelled to give a little ground in the sector of Kemmel Hill, in Belgium.

The Germans gained a footing at Kemmel Hill.

(Kemmel Hill lies in Belgium just west of the lower end of Messines Ridge. The village of Kemmel, which is on the crest of the high ground, is about five miles south of Ypres.)

The Anglo-French forces in this district were greatly outnumbered. The battle continues around Dranoutre, Kemmel and Vierstraet (near the Franco-Belgian frontier.)

The British carried out a minor operation west of Meriville during the night, capturing fifty prisoners and three machine guns.

German artillery has been very active on the front between the Lys river and Givenchy.

In the district of Villers-Bretonneux German posts which had been holding out were cleared.

(Villers-Bretonneux is on the Picardy front about nine miles east of the British base at Amiens.)

The official statement follows: "On the Baillieu-Holbeke front, after severe fighting lasting throughout the day (Thursday) against greatly superior forces, the Allied troops were compelled to give ground in the sector of Kemmel Hill. The enemy obtained a footing at Kemmel Hill."

"Fighting continues in the neighborhood of Dranoutre, Kemmel and Vierstraet."

"We carried out successful minor operations during the night west of Meriville, capturing fifty prisoners and three machine guns."

"Hostile artillery was active on the front between the Lys river and Givenchy."

"South of the Somme river (Picardy front) hostile posts which had been holding out southeast of Villers-Bretonneux were cleared."

"German artillery was active in that region, using gas shells."

"Elsewhere there is nothing to report."

AMERICAN BOYS WORKING RESERVE

American mothers are being asked to stand behind the effort made by the Department of Labor to enlist the boys of the country in farm work during the coming months.

The need is critical. Farmers must have help. Many boys within draft age have had to lay down the hoe and take up the rifle. Their place must be filled if the farmers are going to be induced to plant and produce more than ever before.

Last year the United States Boys' Working Reserve sent some hundred thousand boys to the rescue of the farmer. This year about 250,000 will be needed to meet the war emergency.

Why not, then, utilize in some measure the two million units of the boy power, now either idle or engaged in non-productive work? The need in the fields is just as essential in winning the war as the work in the trenches.

Every mother who has bravely and gladly sent her older boy to her country's defense will, with the same patriotism, offer her younger son to the civilian army on the farms.

No boy may enroll in the Reserve until he has obtained his parents' consent and he may be withdrawn at any time at their discretion. It is in no wise a draft labor but merely a voluntary enlistment.

What mother would not welcome a healthy and wholesome summer for her boy on the farm? The charm of camp life is there, for the boys in some instances are housed in a camp centrally located while farmers carry them back and forth in their conveyances.

There are also Farmers' Training Camps where boys are given six weeks' intensive training, including actual demonstration work, before being enrolled as regular farm laborers.

Parents need have no misgiving in sending their boys to these camps for they are under the direction of a Y. M. C. A. or other welfare worker, who looks after the health, morals and also diversion of the boys in his charge.

In most cases, however, the boys are housed in the individual farm-houses and though the hours are long and the labor strenuous, it is a fine, big life in the open and as a rule the boys revel in it. One boy writes: "This is the life! The work, though somewhat heavy, is very enjoyable and everyone on the place is good to us." Another says: "Tell the boys it's no cinch on a farm but if you are willing to work hard, the farm's the place."

Mothers who know the troubles of getting a sleepy youth awake in the morning have wondered to themselves about their soldier boys when the farm reveille is sounded. These mothers will also appreciate the feelings of one of these civilian lads, now fighting the war on the farm, who wrote: "We have to get up and help the sun rise but I like it."

SAUGERTIES.

Saugerties, April 26.—The Rev. Thomas Cole will deliver the address at the farewell meeting for the selected boys in the Orpheum Monday night, April 29.

Mrs. Adolph Spielman of Long Island is visiting her sister, Mrs. Joseph Huber, on Main street.

Mrs. William MacMurray and daughter, Vivian, of Barclay Heights are visiting in New York city.

Miss Louise Gunkle of Poughkeepsie spent the past few days with Miss Julia Loezel, on Partition street.

Michael Fitzgerald and family have moved from Livingston street to Elm street.

Lyman Mattes of New York is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Mattes of Russell street.

Mrs. Charles Abeel of Poughkeepsie spent Wednesday in town.

4th Class Postmaster Examination.

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced an examination to be held at Kingston on May 24, 1918, as a result of which it is expected to make certification to the position of fourth-class postmaster at Willow, N. Y., and other vacancies as they may occur at that office, unless it shall be decided in the interests of the service to fill the vacancy by reappointment. The compensation of the postmaster at this office was $218 for the last fiscal year.

Stolen Dynamite Found.

By Telegraph to The Freeman. New York, April 26.—Dynamite, wrapped in oil soaked paper, was found today in the engine room of a building on East 22nd street, occupied by Lehmeier, Schwartz & Co. The company makes bottle caps. The explosive is believed to be part of a large quantity recently stolen from the Underpinning and Foundation Company.

GERMAN DRIVE IS MORE INTENSE

German Tanks Used for First Time are Formidable and Speedy—Germans Expected to Dig in Shortly.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, April 26.—Further advice reaching Washington today indicated that the German drive in the west constantly is increasing in intensity. The Allies, however, are reported as better qualified to withstand the effort to break through, as all weak spots have been materially strengthened by General Foch with units taken from the reserve armies.

The chief objective of the Allies, the information reaching the war department indicated, is to retain their bases and to this end every possible agency is being utilized.

It is admitted that the German tanks in use for the first time are most formidable weapons of warfare because of their speed. They are lighter than the British and utilize engines of the type which have been used in German submarines, making it possible for them to travel materially faster than any that the British or French have in action. This has made possible the demolition of wire barriers and the like, thus compelling the French and British to cede territory. It is understood, however, that steps have been taken to meet this menace.

Military experts were confident today that the Germans soon will be forced to dig themselves in. They refused to say on what they based the opinion, but made it plain that this action can be looked for within the coming week. If this should prove true then the advantage will be on the side of the Entente as digging in will be a confession by the German military machine that it has been stalled by the Allied resistance.

Naval officers generally were anxious today to locate the point where the marines are now engaged with the enemy. Up to the present, however, there is nothing in the official reports to clear up this point. Many officers are of the belief that the marines are holding a sector near Toul where they have relieved veteran troops which have been sent to Verdun.

A THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

Your State Food Commission Asks You to Read This, Too.

Reiterating its policy encouraging the free use of perishable foods, your Food Administration and your State Food Commission ask for the liberal use of eggs and poultry by the public during the period of greatest production in order that conservation of staple foods needed for export may be increased. The prime necessity for saving wheat comes at a time when the taste of the American people normally turns to fresh vegetables, eggs and dairy products, which are most plentiful during the spring and early summer.

Free consumption of these perishables will have the following beneficial effect on the food situation: Their liberal use will (1) help to save wheat without reducing the nutritive value of the diet, and (2) save transportation, because such foods are in large measure produced locally. Beginning May 1, the ban on marketing live or freshly killed hens and pullets is lifted and a liberal movement of poultry stocks from farm to market is anticipated in order to provide housing space for the 1918 flocks. Good culling of flocks in localities where feed is scarce will still further increase the marketing of farm poultry. During May and June especially the liberal consumption of poultry is especially desired.

As a part of its effort to handle the bountiful spring egg and poultry crop, the Food Administration urges shippers of eggs to load refrigerators cars to the maximum consistent with safe carriage. The carload minimum is placed at 24,000 pounds. Large production of perishables will create a strong demand for refrigerator cars, which are not plentiful enough to permit any trade to indulge in their extravagant use.

TRY THIS CRUTCH.

Bread is the staff of life, but you can make a very good crutch of potatoes.

That is to say, the need of the human stomach for bread can be very largely satisfied by potatoes if the idea can be fixed in the mind that you aren't getting cheated of any necessary food material.

It is as much a war measure to eat potatoes at this time as it is to manufacture shells or give your money for the use of the government.

We are short of wheat; we have great quantities of potatoes. Potatoes are not such good travelers as wheat, consequently we must eat the former and send the wheat on the long, dangerous journey to the war zone, where it will be received as a necessary factor of success.

Phrenological.
An odd reminder, says the Independent, of the days when phrenology was popular as a means of "reading character," with a sly dig at the tendency of its professors to give complimentary explanations of the "bumps," is found in a letter from Elizabeth Barrett Browning advertised for sale in a London bookseller's catalogue. It reads in part: "Do you believe in phrenology? Did you ever consult a phrenological oracle? and did it answer, 'My son, thou art invincible?'"

A FEW REASONS
Why Women Should Invest in the Third Liberty Loan Bond Issue.
Because—
It is their patriotic duty.
It is a safe and secure investment.
It supplies the government with funds to be used for the sinews of war.
It will supply money to be loaned our allies.
It will encourage our boys at the front to know that those at home are doing their share.
It is an expression of loyalty.
It is an evidence of willingness to serve.
It is in the spirit of true democracy.
It is good business judgment to be a bondholder in the institution of your government.
It is not woman's province to fight, but woman's duty to respond to our nation's call.
It is the supreme test of your love of country.

INSURING THE FARM WITH LIBERTY BONDS

By H. ARMSTRONG ROBERTS.
Said a farmer to the cashier of a local bank: "I can't afford to buy Liberty Bonds. The way prices are for seed, fertilizer, labor and such like I need all the cash I have to get my crops started."

"Yes," replied the cashier, "we all need cash. But then we've got to protect that cash, too."

The farmer was puzzled. The cashier went on: "Get any insurance on your barn and other buildings?"

"Sure," the farmer responded; "$10,000."

"You wouldn't be without that protection, would you?"

"No."

"Costs you something to keep it up, doesn't it?"

"Well, I should say it did; about $70 a year."

"Mighty good investment, though, if you happened to have a fire."

"That's the way I try to look at it," returned the farmer.

"Good!" exclaimed the cashier. "That's the way every business man looks at those things. And now I want you to look at these Liberty Bonds in the same light."

"Just as your insurance policies protect your property against loss by fire, so do Liberty Bonds protect your property and the lives of your family against the invasion of the Hun. Make no mistake about it; Liberty Bonds are protection of the strongest sort. The only thing which stands between us and the German hordes is an armed front—well equipped armies, a powerful navy, a giant transport fleet, aircraft and munitions plants. It is this armed front which is safeguarding your property, your loved ones, and mine. It is defending our personal liberty and the right to own property at all. It is preventing us from becoming a slave, a vassal, under one of the most terrible, heartless, wanton military systems the world has ever known."

"Liberty Bonds provide the government with the cash to protect your property against destruction or confiscation; therefore I call them insurance. But, unlike your fire insurance, which offers you nothing in return, excepting you meet with a disaster, the Liberty Bonds constitute a loan, which will be repaid in full at some future date, in addition to which you receive compensation for the loan in the form of interest on the money. In other words, the government is not only willing to provide you with the best protection at its command, but it is willing to pay you well for any assistance you may lend."

"Do you know of a squarer bargain than that?"
The farmer was convinced. "I never thought of it that way," he said. "Reckon my farm won't be worth much if we don't win, so I'll go the limit on those bonds and charge 'em up to insurance."

BOND LIMERICKS.

A man who knew less than he should
Remembered he was misunderstood
When he said it was right
To stay out of this fight
And defeat the bond sale if one could.

A sensible woman named Jones
Got wise to the Liberty Loans.
Quoth she, "That's the racket
To tan Wilhelm's jacket
And bury his pesky old bones!"

A man whose cognomen was Gray
Bought bonds for his wife every day.
Said he, "IT surprise her
By canning the Kaiser
In this economical way!"

A maiden whose surname was Pond
Had a lover of whom she was fond.
"I'll marry you, dear,"
She remarked in his ear.
"If you'll buy me a Liberty Bond!"
—Lurana Sheldon.

Soldier Attends Service in Ancient and Musty French Church—Astor Yacht—The Shoemaker's Despair—Romancers and Others.

On Active Service with the American Expeditionary Force, April 2.—Today I received 10 letters from home, some old and some new. Some of the news was new, others simply connected up missing links with letters of later dates. You see some mail comes one route on a fast ship while others come slower. Eventually we get it and sometimes in record time. Mail coming to us, of course, is not censored and thus saves a bit of time over outgoing mail here.

You seem to think all of France is right up at the trenches. Well, it is not. I am back where the only roar of guns I hear is at target practice and am too far away even for air raids. In fact, people are coming down here from towns at the front, especially in the winter, for it always was a great town for winter time.

You ask do we see any prisoners of war. Well, I should say so. Lots of them.

The Old Huguenot Church. Yesterday was Easter and to show that even though we were away from home we still thought of something else but war, a truck load of us went to town, to church. I at first thought I would go to the American services, but decided to do something novel for my first Easter abroad, so picked out a very ancient and musty looking stone church, which looked good to me, and went there. It was a French Presbyterian or Reformed Church, and one of the old Huguenot Churches maybe some of our ancestors attended before they were chased out of France, and the services were in French, but I think the preacher must have been a first-class man for his delivery was so clear I could make out parts of his sermon and also his text. The singing was good and the choir had pipe organ and choir. The choir was seated up in a box over the organ. Rittner, who understands quite a bit of French went with me. You know how and I always poke about the unusual place. Well, I had one of those spots yesterday, so went to the French church and then to top of the day I had a turkey dinner, soup, cranberry sauce and ice cream. French fried potatoes, coffee and salad for dinner, and met our friends and went to the rink in the afternoon. In the evening we dined for 2 francs.

Apple Blossom Time in — The country about here is taking on a look of summer now. There are some apples, cherries, etc., green here and the trees are in bloom. The peach trees have bloomed and gardens have been planted and in some places are up. Peas are 4 and 5 inches tall and grape vines are budding out, so you see we are ahead of you. Today it rained, but I went to town as usual and I'll say it was some slippery and muddy. Just a drizzle, you know. I did not stop to see Lorin, for I was in a hurry. It is the first rain we have had for some time, and has rained since Saturday. Now (6:30 p. m.) it is clear again and I guess the rain is over.

There doesn't seem to be the big Easter parade here as in the states. So the rain didn't prevent anyone showing their new gown. Sorry to say I had neither a new suit nor hat for Easter.

No, I am not mixed up on my geography. I know there are several towns in France one might mix up with the names are similar, but I have seen enough to know one from another, I guess.

The Astor Yacht. Jacobi gets the American and I saw a long piece about Mr. and Mrs. Astor. I saw the old Astor yacht one day and recognized it. It is quite different from when she lay anchored off our little burgh in the Hudson river.

I visited one of the aero fields some time ago and you know what the Allied aviators are doing now. Well, wait until they get really started. I was also to a camp where a bunch of New York Infantry are, but was not able to get down to their quarters with the truck on account of bad roads, so don't know if there are any boys there. I know, I may get a chance to see them. I'll talk with someone from home. Why, Enlist never knew of the trolley car smash or any news like that until I gave him the papers. I'll bet some of the boys would like to hear from their friends a bit more often. We don't know anything except what you write, for we can't swap news when we are so far apart.

Cindrella's Brother. I got a like story to tell. It sounds sort of like a yarn, but it is true. A big foot, 6 inch infantry man went with me one day to town, and I never thought he was so big until he stepped off the car alongside an average sized Frenchman. He is six feet, 6 inches in his stocking feet. Well, here is the joke. We went to buy a pair of leggings and he asked the shoemaker how much it would be to have a pair of shoes made. The Frenchman said a lot of things and then mentioned 65 francs. We did not know what he said until a French lieutenant came in who could speak English. The cobbler was trying to tell us he could not make the shoes so we left him and had our shoes made. Well, if he had a last big enough the job would be 70 francs for tan, so he got down his dusty, seldom used lasts and picked out the largest size. But it was 1/2 of an inch too short, so he can't make the shoes. I am wondering if there was a shoe last big enough in France. This fellow is so big he spreads out his arms and nine of ten Frenchmen can walk under his arms. This sounds like a fairy tale, but I can produce the man. I never saw a taller man in my life. He caused comment every time we stopped.

"Meet Me in France." I received a letter from Lieut. Saunders. Do you remember last time he was at the house. I told him I'd like to see him and he told me he'd like to see me. He mentioned that he had offered to do anything to get over and back. He can't see why someone who wants to go can't while so many who are not anxious to cross are over here. He thought I was joking last summer, but I beat him over.

I have not even seen a sailor from home yet or met one who knows any. Although I see many, I wonder if Raymond will come over or stay about the coast?

I received the magazines, but not the packages. Also I did write the Red Men. Maybe some of my mail was among the 30,000 lost. There are a great many over here who are going to be romancers on the war when they return, and I am afraid there will be some great stories. Believe me, when this war is over I am going to forget about it, no amusing or entertaining stories for your truly. I don't ride any war horses after I beat the States of Liberty. I'll read over my diary once in a while to recall old times, that will suit me.

Well, it is getting dark and I guess I'll quit for the present. I have about 14 letters now to answer, so I must get busy. I don't get much time and I receive so much mail. At the headquarters they say I get more mail than any one man in Base Section, No. 2, with one exception. He is a married man and his wife writes every day once and sometimes more. I don't know but perhaps I am pretty fortunate in regard to letters, but there can't be too many. They say at the office that it takes one truck for me, and if it were not for my mail it would not be necessary to go every day for mail. Jacobi is a close second though. He got nine in two days and I got fourteen, so I still lead by a good bit. Regards to all my friends.

IF GOD IS WITH THE ALMIGHTY DOLLAR

Then We Have the Kaiser Beaten 100 to 1 if We Put Up the Dollars, Says Mr. Prophet of Ulster Park.

George Prophet of Ulster Park, lecturer, writer and student of humanity, whose father was a native of Larzel Candel, France, was invited to deliver an address at the Port Ewen Liberty Loan meeting but did not do so because others talked until 11 o'clock. At the request of The Freeman Mr. Prophet has written out the speech he intended to deliver, as follows:

Ladies and Gentlemen—The money issued by the German government, i. e., by the Kaiser, carries on its face this motto, "Gott ist mit uns," which translated literally is "God is with us," and this interpreted one way means, "God is with us, the Almighty Dollars."

Well, if we assume that God is with the Almighty Dollar, the allies have the Kaiser beaten by 100 to 1, and what we are here for tonight is to make that 100 to 1 bet, and place the stakes in the hands of our government to make the winning of that bet an absolute certainty, and thus prove to the German Kaiser that for once in his life he was right; that in this war, God is with the Almighty Dollar and that the Almighty Dollar is determined exactly by the number of dollars that it represents. Now, ladies and gentlemen, tonight it is within your right to add your bit to this almightiness that will win this war.

All life is a gambling venture, a gamble from the cradle to the grave, and we are now engaged in the most stupendous, most complex and most costly game ever entered into by nations in the entire history of the world.

The battlefield of this world-war comprises the entire surface of this earth, and land and undersea, and water and under water and in the sky up to the unthinkable heights.

Nations of millions of men are the contestants; and justice, civilization and national life itself are the stakes.

Everything is on such a tremendous scale that, in trying to picture it, the imagination of man is staggered; and speech, in trying to tell of this fraction of the per cent of all we think and feel, is struck dumb.

This unspeakable, unnamable monster, the German Kaiser, has destroyed cathedrals, hospitals and nurseries; he has inoculated and poisoned human beings and animals; he has killed helpless old men, innocent women, children and babes; he has starved human beings to death, and then ground up their bones for fertilizer in the darkness of night; he has assassinated sick soldiers, maimed soldiers and blinded soldiers; he has raped the young women, and has killed Belgium and France; he has burned living human beings to ashes.

This abortive monstrosity has murdered entire nations; he has wrecked and ruined almost the entire world, and turned a great part of it into a veritable hell, with himself as a part of such cruelty and invention, that compared to him, the old Satan we have known, is an angel.

Why to call this paralytic degenerate a beast is a criminal libel on the entire animal kingdom.

Oh, if the allies should one of these days capture this well-hidden, well-protected, well-protected, they ought to say to him: Oh, how we regret that you have not as many millions of lives as you have caused to be destroyed, directly and indirectly, then we would take them all, one by one.

And if there be no hell, one ought to be created for your special punishment, a hell in which the evil spirit of every single one of your dastardly lives could be made to suffer eternally no worse tortures than you yourself have inflicted on mankind.

Now, ladies and gentlemen, money not only talks, but it works and fights. Will you buy a bond to help win this war?

COUGHLIN WRITES FROM FRANCE

Postmaster W. C. DeWitt has received an interesting letter from Private Edward Coughlin, 1st Company, M. M. Regiment, S. I. Air Service, A. E. F., New York. Private Coughlin writes:

Every Friday night being the time set aside by the Y. M. C. A. for us to write home, I am here amongst a group of a few hundred others all busily engaged in the art of hand writing. These little huts are all on the same principle, comprising a stage, piano, canteen and decorated with flags of the Allies. Benches and movable writing tables take up the floor space, the tables being dispensed with on nights set aside for entertainment.

Last night was musical night and had players of high repute, because the Y. M. C. A. men told us and although classical music reigned supreme we enjoyed them none the less because we knew they must be good. Our company is going to have a minstrel show which should meet with great approval as the southerners we have won't need much tutoring to get away with that colored style of talk, and all the boys appreciate any comedy.

It's not as lonesome as it might seem to be over here, and it's hard for me to realize I am so far away from the states as I am, because something is doing all the time, and as our time is pretty well occupied as days come and go quickly.

Having travelled considerably before getting to our destination camp there are many interesting incidents happened and I would like to go farther in detail about some of the cities and their whereabouts but it's against the rules and regulations so I'll keep it all to myself until I reach the Colonial City once again.

The camp that we are now in is an aviation camp and cadets are flying in their machines daily and attract a good many pedestrians from town to watch their maneuvers, who gaze at them as strangers do at the tall buildings in New York. These are all American flyers and are from all over the states. We think every state is represented here in camp from coast to coast.

The favorite pastime here is bicycle riding and they do seem to enjoy it. Women who look to be sixty and over ride as well as those thirty years their junior. On a good many they make the feet go the opposite direction that we do when we ride, but they go forward. Everything seems to be just the opposite of things in the states, and bicycles are no exception.

They even speak a different language than we do at home, and we do have to make some gestures to make ourselves understood. If they say something in French to us and we don't understand what they mean we come back at them in English so they won't have anything on us.

I am studying it in spare time and after making a few funny faces I make a noise. There are several French fellows in our company and we often get customers for them.

Tomorrow we play a game of baseball and you will probably see the boys in the Y. M. C. A. American weather permitting.

It is already after 8 o'clock and as we arise at 5 a. m. I am going to close.

Mothers Here Interested in New Treatment

Relieves Colds Over Night and Croup in Fifteen Minutes—Applied Externally.

NOTHING TO SWALLOW. YOU JUST RUB IT ON.

Local Druggists Have Arranged to Sell 25c, 50c, or $1.00 Packages on 30 Days Trial.

Local druggists report a great deal of interest, especially among mothers with small children, in the remarkable external "vapor" treatment, known as Vick's VapoRub, recently introduced here from the South.

This treatment makes unnecessary "dosing" with injurious medicines, using flannel jackets and chest protectors, or keeping the children shut up indoors. You can let the little chaps run outdoors and get their needed fresh air and exercise. If colds do start, "nip them in the bud" by using VapoRub—it is externally applied and can therefore be used freely and often, with perfect safety, on the smallest member of the family.

VapoRub comes in salve form and is applied over the throat and chest, covering with a warm flannel cloth. The body heat releases medicated vapors that are inhaled with every breath, all night long, through the air passages to the lungs. These vapors loosen the phlegm and clear the air passages.

In cases of very severe chest colds or incipient pneumonia, first apply hot, wet towels over the throat and chest to open the pores. VapoRub is then absorbed through and stimulates the skin, taking out that tightness and soreness in the chest.

Ask your druggist about the 30 days' trial offer.—Advertisement.

KAISER INSPECTS ZEEBRUGGE RUINS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, April 26.—The Kaiser has visited the German submarine base at Zeebrugge on the Belgian coast to make a personal inspection of the damage done in the British raid, said a Central News despatch from Amsterdam today.

The British admiralty has issued a long statement, giving an inspiring narrative of the British attack and detailing deeds of deathless bravery at both Ostend and Zeebrugge.

The outstanding fact was that two previous attempts had been made to raid the submarine bases but both had been frustrated by bad weather. The whole exploit was carried out through a gale and under shelling and the fire from machine guns.

Col. Elliott, leading the marines, and Captain Hallam, leading the bluejackets, were killed before the assault commenced. Many of the British were killed in the gangways and on the lower decks of the cruiser Vindictive. The ship speedily became a shambles. Two crews of the forward howitzer were killed.

The storming and demolition parties did not meet any resistance at the Zeebrugge pier except the fire from German artillery.

Hangers and store sheds were set on fire and blown up.

The "skeleton crews" of the block ships kept the guns going.

The propeller of the Thetis fouled on the German net defences and was pounded by gunfire. The ship became unmanageable and sank some hundreds of yards from the mouth of the (Bruges) Canal.

The Intrepid and Aphigenia were successfully beached and were blown up on either side of the canal.

Aerial observation afterwards established the fact that both hulks are in position at the entrance of the canal and that the harbor mouth is effectively blocked.

A submarine was rammed at the jetty and cut in half.

Amidst the smoke clouds through which the raid was carried out the North Star lost her way, but was located by the Germans through use of star shells. She was sunk but the Phoebe rescued nearly all of her crew.

At Ostend the wind changed during the course of the operation dispersing the smoke clouds, and revealing the Sirius and Brilliant. Both failed to locate the entrance to the harbor and they grounded and sank about 400 yards east of the piers.

The crews of both were saved.

Seventy-nine men were killed on the Iris (off Zeebrugge), and 195 were wounded.

This was the first of the British warships to attempt to grapple the Zeebrugge mole, but the effort failed.

Then the Daffodil pushed the Vindictive alongside of the mole.

Two of the officers of the Iris were astride the parapet with grappling hooks but were killed. The commander was mortally wounded. The Iris was forced to fall astern of the Vindictive by the German shelling.

Big projectiles plunged into the upper decks of the Iris and burst below, killing 49 marines and wounding the remaining seven. A shell struck the ward room, killing four officers and 26 men.

DIEDLING PROVES B. S. L. AGAIN LIES

Stories circulated sometime ago by the Busy Street Liar in reference to Dr. Rudolph F. Diedling of Saugerties, to which attention was called by The Freeman, ought to be definitely put at rest by the following postal which was received from him on Thursday by Julius Oppenheimer of Oppenheimer Brothers, the Broadway jeweler.

GODFREY GOES TO ROCHESTER

Local Y. M. C. A. Physical Director to Become Executive Secretary of Maplewood Branch—Leaves Tuesday Morning.

Physical Director L. C. Godfrey of the local Y. M. C. A. whose resignation was recently accepted by the board of directors, leaves Kingston Tuesday morning for Rochester, N. Y., where he has accepted the call to become executive secretary of the Maplewood Branch of the Y. M. C. A.

Mr. Godfrey became physical director of the local association in September, 1914, and since that time has proven one of the most efficient directors the association has ever known. He was not only an all-around athlete but was capable of imparting what he knew to those under his instruction.

It will be remembered that the Maplewood Branch of the Rochester Y. M. C. A. had acquired two other Kingston men. The first man was "Gus" Fomesteele, who is now building superintendent of the building at Rochester and the other was Clarence Schoonmaker who is now at the Central Branch in Rochester.

The board of directors have not secured another man to succeed Mr. Godfrey as yet, and as the gymnasium season is drawing to a close they make take no action until fall when the gym reopens.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS NOTES

The high school entertainment will be held in the high school auditorium on Monday evening, April 29, at 8 o'clock. The proceeds will be for the benefit of the victrola and school funds.

This entertainment will probably be the largest that has ever been given in the high school. In all about two hundred students will take part. There will be a glee club of about one hundred voices. A number of drills, dances, etc., will be given in which about eighty students will take part. Last, but not least, a short play entitled, "The Ring," will be given by a number of seniors.

If you are a taxpayer in Kingston, if you have any relatives attending the high school you ought to come to the entertainment Monday night. The purpose of the entertainment is to show its patrons what is being done at the high school.

At a meeting of the senior class Tuesday night the class day speakers were elected. They are as follows: Class orator, Nelson Miles; class poet, Dorothy Downer; class critic, Eugene Ryan; class historian, Vivian O'Neill; class legacy, Agnes S. Smith; class prophet, Emily Crosby; address to faculty, Russell R. Dana, Jr.; advice to juniors, Peter Ryan; class elocutionist, Anna Cassier.

The juniors, failing in their attempts to secure either, former ambassador to Germany, Gerard, or Arthur Guy Empey or Hon. Theodore Roosevelt to lecture in Kingston, have at last resorted to a dance in order to raise money. The dance will be held in the high school gymnasium on Friday evening, May 3. If the alumni of the two old academies, the alumni of the high school and the students of the high school support the juniors as well as they did the seniors the juniors will be rich. The seniors cleared about three dollars with which to replenish their Red Cross fund.

Rings Around the Moon.

Those superstitious persons who have not yet recovered from the shock of seeing a brilliant cross on the moon on three occasions during the last four months or so are now worrying about the latest unusual sight that the moon featured Thursday night. The moon was unusually bright and was surrounded by several brilliant and broad rings of red, white and blue. This lasted for some little time. About one o'clock this morning the brilliant colored rings disappeared as mysteriously as they came and a small streak of yellow fringed on one side of the moon. "Wonder what it all means?" was a remark often heard as the novel sight was witnessed.

MAKES STRONG PLEA FOR CO-OPERATION

Mr. Howland Gives Helpful Lecture on Industrial Conservation—Team Work Essential in Solving Industrial and War Problems.

Under the direction of Kingston Chamber of Commerce, Ellis L. Howland of New York City gave a lecture entitled "Conservation of American Industry," at the Elks' auditorium Thursday night at a smoker and get together rally.

Mr. Howland proved to be an interesting speaker and thoroughly conversant with his topic. His lecture was listened to with close attention and was received with applause. The rally, which was also featured by an informal smoker, was well attended.

Mr. Howland was introduced by Joseph M. Herbert, president of the chamber.

A brief, but interesting address was made by R. E. Leighton, who spoke along the lines of the co-operation and co-operation of Chamber of Commerce resources. He made a plea for the co-operation of every member of the chamber with the officers and directors, and the co-operation of every citizen in the work that is being carried on by the chamber.

Mr. Leighton emphasized the value of team work. He also spoke in praise of the work that was accomplished by those who labored hard and unselfishly in recent years for the good welfare of Kingston and said that the visions of those who worked so hard were being brought to fruition.

Address of Mr. Howland.

"It seems particularly fitting," said Mr. Howland, "that my subject is industrial conservation, for, judging from your president's remarks, I believe that this work closely harmonizes with the work and purposes of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce."

"Stripped of all details, the industrial conservation movement is simply an effort to bring home to the people of every community a realization of the fact that industry is a national and community asset to be fostered and encouraged by the common weal and not a selfish possession of national proprietors."

"Misunderstanding and ignorance is our greatest menace, misunderstanding of class towards class—misunderstanding of the fundamental economic law—misunderstanding of our mutualities and friendships—misunderstanding of the fact that we are all human and are actuated by human motives; whether we are rich or poor."

"Some of this misunderstanding has been cleared up. We have come to see the business man as he is, a great national and community asset—a force for national security and prosperity. This war has shown us the power of co-operation and co-ordination of industry. Let us follow the captains of industry rather than the agitators of discontent."

"No man ever helped the world by handing out grievances and promoting antagonism."

Mr. Howland paid a high compliment to the loyalty of the business men, the professional men, the mechanics, and the laborers from every walk of life, who in this war have responded so nobly to the call of service for Uncle Sam in his fight for democracy and freedom.

All selfish interests have vanished and every factor available for national defense has been freely offered. Men, fortunes, plants, patents, and lives have been, and are being given in the great cause.

About the War.

Part of Mr. Howland's lecture had to do with America's part in the war, and his remarks along these lines were very stirring.

"These thoughts of industrial conservation come home more clearly in these days when the world is in such a chaotic condition," said Mr. Howland. "It is inevitable that the present war should have come about, although none of us expected it, in these twentieth century days of presumed enlightenment."

"The very movement when civilization is congratulating itself that the panacea of war has been discovered there crops out in mid-Europe a recrudescence of militarism and terrorism which regards as nothing the rights that we know—the privileges of the individual and the enjoyment of human freedom; and exalts the domination of the despot as the sum total of human hopes."

"The withdrawal of forty million men directly and perhaps five hundred million more indirectly from the energies of peace and progress, and turning them toward work of death and destruction represents an economic loss that the world can never absorb."

"There can come from it absolutely no commensurate blessing, and it ought to be a source of pride to every citizen of this country that America has entered this world war, not with a hope for an inch of conquered territory, or a dollar of indemnity, or any other selfish motive; but purely in the defense of those principles of human freedom that have made America the champion of the world's idealism."

"As I understand it, it is this same principle of the perpetuation of the free field for individual and community effort and co-operation to uphold and maintain national prosperity and progress, that is the fundamental hope of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce and kindred organizations."

"Ancient 'Breadfather'."

Of what great importance the loaf, which before 1200 was the name of bread, was a daily food can be inferred from its relation with the word 'loaf'. For Lord, A. S. hinford (half bread, loaf; ward, a keeper), is probably a contraction of half-ward, literally 'loaf-ward' and therefore, originally signified the keeper or dispenser of bread—in short, the 'loaf-father' to whom the members of the family had to apply for their daily bread.

GOVERNMENT TAKES OVER THE GARDNER

Yacht Now Doing Harbor Work in New York—Yacht Kingston Has Been Sold—Other Navigation Notes.

The steam yacht E. B. Gardner has been taken over by the government and is now engaged in government harbor work in New York harbor. Captain Frank Roosa is still at the helm. The Gardner last year was engaged by a sight seeing concern to make trips around New York harbor. Before that time she plied between Rondout and Glasco.

The steam yacht Kingston has been sold to parties in New York city by E. Morse Tremper. The Kingston formerly ran on the Glasco-Rondout route, but for the past few years has been berthed in New York.

Henry Taylor, chef of the Lake Katrine Inn the past season, has resigned and accepted a position as chef on the steamer Uster. For the first time in the memory of those who are below the half century mark in age, regular service by boat between Catskill and Hudson will be interrupted this season by the withdrawal of the little steamer Isabella from the route. The Catskill Mail states that it is learned on good authority that under existing conditions the proposition is not a promising one, and the difficulty in procuring the services of an engineer and a sufficient amount of coal of the proper size makes it doubtful whether regular service could be maintained in any event.

VICTORY MENUS.

These menus, planned to conserve time, labor and money, to save the foods that are scarce and use those of which there is an abundance, are Victory Menus in more senses than one. They are prepared by the Department of Home Economics of the State College of Agriculture and endorsed by the New York State Food Commission.

Friday.

Breakfast—Apple sauce, nutmeg seasoning, potato pancakes, maple syrup.

Lunch or Supper—Potato cutlets, green pepper sauce, rolled oat bread, stewed prunes, maple oat cake.

Dinner—Broiled fresh mackerel, sauce tartare, diced potatoes, chopped parsley, creamed young carrots, chocolate blanc mange.

Milk for the children to drink at each meal.

(*May be omitted and still leave a balanced meal.) Make cornstarch save wheat for all thickening purposes. Much flour is wasted daily in the thickening of soups, sauces, gravies and puddings where cornstarch would serve. Here is one simple way in which further to cut down our use of wheat flour. For thickening purposes, one-third less cornstarch than flour is required.

Potato Pancakes.

6 raw grated potatoes (2 cups), 1 teaspoon salt, 2 whole eggs, 1 tablespoon flour, pinch of baking powder, a little milk.

Peel large potatoes; grate, drain, and add other ingredients, beating the eggs well and mixing with the rest. Drop by spoonfuls on a hot, buttered griddle, in small cakes, turn and brown on both sides. Serve with apple sauce.

Green Pepper Sauce. Make a thin or medium white sauce. Add green pepper cut in strips or diced and cook until the pepper is done.

Potato Cutlets.

1 cup mashed or chopped potato, 1 cup bread crumbs, 1 cup ground boiled soy beans or any beans, ½ cup tomato juice, 2 sweet red peppers, minced, pepper.

Combine the ingredients and form the mixture into shape like cutlets. Dip them into beaten egg, roll them in bread crumbs, place on a greased tin and brown in a moderate oven. Serve the cutlets with pimiento, green pepper or horse radish sauce.

Recipes for any of the dishes in these menus which cannot be found in cook books, may be had by writing to the Department of Home Economics, State College of Agriculture, Ithaca, N. Y.

Composition of Mica.

Mica, so named from its being easily divided into glistening scales, consists of silica and alumina, associated with magnesia, soda and lime in varying proportions. Thus there are potash mica, consisting of silica, alumina and potash, and magnesia mica, in which the alumina is partially replaced by magnesia, passing—as the proportion of magnesia increases—into soft talc, which is chiefly composed of silica and magnesia.

Some Shade in All Lives.

Persons who foolishly conclude that life is all sunshine and roses will when they least expect it, be rudely awakened from this pleasant dream. Each one of us has a certain work to do, certain cares and responsibilities to contend with, and if we think that the Fates are going to spare us from anything that savors of trial or anxiety a gigantic surprise is in store for us.

GOVERNMENT TAKES OVER THE GARDNER

Yacht Now Doing Harbor Work in New York—Yacht Kingston Has Been Sold—Other Navigation Notes.

The steam yacht E. B. Gardner has been taken over by the government and is now engaged in government harbor work in New York harbor. Captain Frank Roosa is still at the helm. The Gardner last year was engaged by a sight seeing concern to make trips around New York harbor. Before that time she pined between Houdou and Glasgow.

The steam yacht Kingston has been sold to parties in New York city by B. Morris Tremper. The Kingston formerly ran on the Gloucester-Roundout route, but for the past few years has been berthed in New York.

Henry Taylor, chef of the Lake Katherine Inn the past season, has resigned and accepted a position as chef on the steamer Ulster.

For the first time in the memory of those who are below the half century mark in age, regular service by boat between Catskill and Hudson will be interrupted this season by the withdrawal of the little steamer Isabella from the route. The Catskill Mail states that it is learned on good authority that under existing conditions the proposition is not a promising one, and the difficulty in procuring the services of an engineer and a sufficient amount of coal of the proper size makes it doubtful whether regular service could be maintained in any event.

VICTORY MENUS.

These menus, planned to conserve time, labor and money, to save the foods that are scarce and use those of which there is an abundance, are Victory Menus in more senses than one. They are prepared by the Department of Home Economics of the State College of Agriculture and endorsed by the New York State Food Commission.

Friday.

Breakfast—*Apple sauce, nutmeg seasoning, potato pancakes, *maple syrup.

Lunch or Supper—Potato cutlets, *green pepper sauce, *rolled oat bread, stewed prunes, *maple oat cake.

Dinner—Broiled fresh mackerel, *sauce tartare, diced potatoes, chopped parsley, *cream young carrots, *chocolate blanc mange.

Milk for the children to drink at each meal.

(*May be omitted and still leave a balanced meal.)

Make cornstarch save wheat for all thickening purposes. Much flour is wasted daily in the thickening of soups, sauces, gravies and puddings where cornstarch would serve. Here is one simple way in which further to cut down our use of wheat flour. For thickening purposes, one-third less cornstarch than flour is required.

POTATO PANCAKES.

6 raw grated potatoes (2 cups), 1 teaspoon salt, 2 whole eggs, 1 tablespoon flour, pinch of baking powder, a little milk.

Peel large potatoes; grate, drain, and add other ingredients, beating the eggs well and mixing with the rest. Drop by spoonfuls on a hot, buttered griddle, in small cakes, turn and brown on both sides. Serve with apple sauce.

Green Pepper Sauce.

Make a thin or medium white sauce. Add green pepper cut in strips or diced and cook until the pepper is done.

Potato Cutlets.

1 cup mashed or chopped potato, 1 cup bread crumbs, 1 cup ground boiled soy beans or any beans, ½ cup tomato juice, 2 sweet red peppers, minced, pepper.

Combine the ingredients and form the mixture into shape like cutlets. Dip them into beaten egg, roll them in bread crumbs, place on a greased tin and brown in a moderate oven. Serve the cutlets with pimiento, green pepper or horse radish sauce.

Recipes for any of the dishes in these menus which cannot be found in cook books, may be had by writing to the Department of Home Economics, State College of Agriculture, Ithaca, N. Y.

Mica, so named from its being easily divided into glistening scales, consists of silica and alumina, associated with magnesia, soda and lime in varying proportions. BRINGS ACTION FOR SEPARATION

Katherine Cole Alleges That Her Husband, Percy Cole, Struck Her With a Shoe and Bed Rail—Some Sensational Testimony.

The action for separation being brought by Katherine Cole against Percy C. Cole was started today before Justice Hasbrouck, at a special term of the supreme court here at the court house.

The following charges are made by Mrs. Cole in her complaint:

In or about the year 1913 defendant struck plaintiff without cause or provocation with one of his work shoes, disabling her for several days.

In the spring of 1914 when the plaintiff was cleaning house, defendant struck plaintiff with a side rail of a bed, lacerating and cutting her head.

In June, 1917, defendant accused plaintiff of infidelity and when she denied the charge, defendant struck plaintiff several blows and knocked her unconscious.

Plaintiff claims that she has always been an obedient and faithful wife, and that the defendant has been absent since July 1, 1917, with intent not to return; and since August 1, 1917, has refused to provide for plaintiff's support.

Plaintiff demands judgment for a separation and that reasonable provision be made for her support and maintenance out of defendant's property, and that plaintiff have such other and further relief as may be just with costs of actions.

Attorneys in the Case.

Judge N. Frank O'Reilly represents Mrs. Cole; Andrew J. Cook and Judge William D. Brimmer, Sr., are appearing for Mr. Cole.

Testimony of Mrs. Cole.

Mrs. Cole was the first witness called this morning and she told of the alleged cruel acts of her husband.

According to Mrs. Cole, her husband was not only cruel, but at times was also neglectful, not coming home nights, and not leaving enough money for her support.

Mrs. Cole alleged that while she was at Tannersville that her husband took an automobile owned by her and had it stored in his brother's name, at a garage in Haines Falls.

Mrs. Cole said that while she was helping to make out her husband's reports that she found a photograph of a woman in his dress suit case, and had also found either in his dress suit case or in his coat pocket a number of photographs of women.

According to Mrs. Cole, later she met the woman of the photograph found in the dress suit case and invited this woman and her mother to her (Mrs. Cole's) home, and that while they were there this woman's mother said to Cole (the defendant): "I don't know why you should be running around with single girls when you have such a nice home."

Some Sensational Evidence.

Much of the testimony of Mrs. Cole, both in direct and cross examination, was of a nature that cannot be published.

As a number of other witnesses were called. The case was continued this afternoon.

PROHIBITS THE SALE OF LIQUOR

Violators of This Law Are Liable to a Year's Imprisonment and Fine of $1,000.

Mayor Canfield has received the following communication from the adjutant general:

From the adjutant general. To municipal authorities, peace officers and others interested.

JUST HEARING THERE IS WAR

A woman living in the Kentucky mountains told a social worker recently, "I hear there is an awful feud going on somewhere? Is it true?"

The fact that there is a war is only just beginning to penetrate those mountain fastnesses.

A woman in one of the rich agricultural districts of Eastern state is still serving meat every day in the week and white bread every meal. Since the "fifty-fifty" order in buying flour was issued, she was heard to remark: "My pantry shelf is getting loaded down with that breakfast food stuff that I have to buy nowadays and the only way I can get rid of it is to feed it to the chickens."

The fact of war has not yet penetrated her fastness.

There are still too many fastnesses where the seriousness of the food problem has not yet seemed to penetrate. They are found in our big cities and in our richest agricultural valleys just as often as in the mountains of Kentucky.

The ignorance of the poor Kentucky woman is pitiful and forgivable, but the indifference of the other woman is lamentable and unpardonable. Unless the conservation cry is heard and heeded by all women, the food problem of America will not be solved.

Independence of thought and action comes to those who have saved their money against a rainy day—Buy Thrift Stamps.

GERMANS GAIN AT KEMMEL HILL

By Telegram to The Freeman.

London, April 25.—Hard fighting continues along the Picardy and Flanders battle fronts.

The war office stated today that after an all-day struggle on the Baillieul-Hollebeke line, the Allied troops were compelled to give a little ground in the sector of Kemmel Hill, in Belgium.

The Germans gained a footing at Kemmel Hill.

(Kemmel Hill lies in Belgium just west of the lower end of Messines Ridge. The village of Kemmel, which is on the crest of the high ground, is about five miles south of Ypres.)

The Anglo-French forces in this district were greatly outnumbered.

The battle continues around Dranoutre, Kemmel and Viersstraat (near the Franco-Belgian frontier.)

The British carried out a minor operation west of Merville during the night, capturing fifty prisoners and three machine guns.

German artillery has been very active on the front between the Lys river and Givenchy.

In the district of Villers-Bretonneux German posts which had been holding out were cleared.

(Villers-Bretonneux is on the Picardy front about nine miles east of the British base at Amiens.)

The official statement follows:

"On the Baillieul-Hollebeke front, after severe fighting lasting throughout the day (Thursday) against greatly superior forces, the Allied troops were compelled to give ground in the sector of Kemmel Hill. The enemy obtained a footing at Kemmel Hill."

Fighting continues in the neighborhood of Dranoutre, Kemmel and Viersstraat.

"We carried out successful minor operations during the night west of Merville, capturing fifty prisoners and three machine guns."

"Hostile artillery was active on the front between the Lys river and Givenchy."

"South of the Somme river (Picardy front) hostile posts which had been holding out southeast of Villers-Bretonneux were cleared."

"German artillery was active in that region, using gas shells."

"Elsewhere there is nothing to report."

AMERICAN BOYS WORKING RESERVE

American mothers are being asked to stand behind the effort made by the Department of Labor to enlist the boys of the country in farm work during the coming months.

The need is critical. Farmers must have help. Many boys within draft age have had to lay down the hoe and take up the rifle. Their place must be filled if the farmers are going to be induced to plant and produce more than ever before.

Last year the United States Boys' Working Reserve sent some hundred thousand boys to the rescue of the farmer. This year about 250,000 will be needed to meet the war emergency.

Why not, then, utilize in some measure the two million units of the boy power, now either idle or engaged in non-productive work? The need in the fields is just as essential in winning the war as the work in the trenches.

Every mother who has bravely and gladly sent her older boy to her country's defense will, with the same patriotism, offer her younger son to the civilian army on the farms.

No boy may enroll in the Reserve until he has obtained his parents' consent and he may be withdrawn at any time at their discretion. It is in no wise draft labor but merely a voluntary enlistment.

What mother would not welcome a healthy and wholesome summer for her boy on the farm? The charm of camp life is there, for the boys in some instances are housed in a camp centrally located while farmers carry them back and forth in their conveyances.

There are also Farmers' Training Camps where boys are given six weeks' intensive training, including actual demonstration work, before being enrolled as regular farm laborers.

Parents need have no misgiving in sending their boys to these camps for they are under the direction of a Y. M. C. A. or other welfare worker, who looks after the health, meals and also diversion of the boys in his charge.

In most cases, however, the boys are boarded in the individual farm-houses and though the hours are long and the labor strenuous, it is a fine, big life in the open and as a rule the boys revel in it. One boy writes: "This is the life! The work, though somewhat heavy, is very enjoyable and everyone on the place is good to us." Another says: "Tell the boys it's no cinch on a farm but if you are willing to work hard, the farm's the place."

Mothers who know the troubles of getting a sleepy youth awake in the morning have wondered to themselves about their soldier boys when the farm reveille is sounded. These mothers will also appreciate the feelings of one of these civilian lads, now fighting the war on the farm, who wrote: "We have to get up and help the sun rise but I like it."

GERMAN DRIVE IS MORE INTENSE

German Tanks Used for First Time are Formidable and Speedy—Germans Expected to Dig in Shortly.

Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, April 26.—Further advice reaching Washington today indicated that the German drive in the west constantly is increasing in intensity. The Allies, however, are reported as better qualified to withstand the effort to break through, as all weak spots have been materially strengthened by General Foch with units taken from the reserve armies.

The chief objective of the Allies, the information reaching the war department indicated, is to retain their bases and to this end every possible agency is being utilized.

It is admitted that the German tanks in use for the first time are most formidable weapons of warfare because of their speed. They are lighter than the British and utilize engines of the type which have been used in German submarines, making it possible for them to travel materially faster than any that the British or French have in action. This has made possible the demolition of wire barriers and the like, thus compelling the French and British to cede territory. It is understood, however, that steps have been taken to meet this menace.

Military experts were confident today that the Germans soon will be forced to dig themselves in. They refused to say what they based their opinion, but made it plain that this action can be looked for within the coming week. If this should prove true then the advantage will be on the side of the Entente as digging in will be a confession by the German military machine that it has been stalled by the Allied resistance.

Naval officers generally were anxious today to locate the point where the machines are now engaged with the enemy. Up to the present, however, there is nothing in the official reports to clear up this point. Many officers are of the belief that the machines are holding a sector near Toul where they have relieved veteran troops which have been sent to Meuse.

Paris, April 26.—The bombardment of Paris by long range German cannon was recommenced during the night. A factory was struck by a shell but there were no casualties.

A THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

Your State Food Commission Asks You to Read This, Too.

Reiterating its policy encouraging the free use of perishable foods, your Food Administration and your State Food Commission ask for the liberal use of eggs and poultry by the public during the period of greatest production in order that conservation of staple foods needed for export may be increased. The prime necessity for saving wheat comes at a time when the taste of the American people normally turns to fresh vegetables, eggs and dairy products, which are most plentiful during the spring and early summer.

Free consumption of these perishables will have the following beneficial effect on the food situation: Their liberal use will (1) help to save wheat without reducing the nutritive value of the diet, and (2) save transportation, because such foods are in large measure produced locally. Beginning May 1, the ban on marketing live or freshly killed hens and pullets is lifted and a liberal movement of poultry stocks from farm to market is anticipated in order to provide housing space for the 1918 flocks. Close culling of flocks in localities where feed is scarce will still further increase the marketing of farm poultry. During May and June especially the liberal consumption of poultry is especially desired.

As a part of its effort to handle the bountiful spring egg and poultry crop, the Food Administration urges shippers of eggs to load refrigerator cars to the maximum consistent with safe carriage. The carload minimum is placed at 24,000 pounds. Large production of perishables will create a strong demand for refrigerator cars, which are not plentiful enough to permit any trade to indulge in their extravagant use.

TRY THIS CRUTCH.

Bread is the staff of life, but you can make a very good crutch of potatoes.

That is to say, the need of the human stomach for bread can be very largely satisfied by potatoes if the idea can be fixed in the mind that you aren't getting cheated of any necessary food material.

It is as much a war measure to eat potatoes at this time as it is to manufacture shells or give your money for the use of the government.

We are short of wheat; we have great quantities of potatoes. Potatoes are not such good travelers as wheat, consequently we must eat the former and send the wheat on the long, dangerous journey to the war zone, where it will be received as a necessary factor of success.

Phrenological.

An odd reminder, says the Independent, of the days when phrenology was popular as a means of "reading character," with a sly dig at the tendency of its professors to give complimentary explanations of the "bumps," is found in a letter from Elizabeth Barrett Browning advertised for sale in a London bookseller's catalogue. "It reads in part: 'Do you believe in phrenology? Did you ever consult a phrenologist or ac? and did it answer, 'My son, thou art invincible?'"

Champ Clark Declines.

Washington, April 26.—Speaker Champ Clark this afternoon definitely declined the appointment as senator from Missouri to succeed the late Senator William J. Stone. Speaker Clark announced his declination of the appointment in a letter to Governor Gardner of Missouri.

A FEW REASONS

Why Women Should Invest in the Third Liberty Loan Bond Issue.
Because—
It is their patriotic duty.
It is a safe and secure investment.
It supplies the government with funds to be used for the needs of war.
It will supply money to be loaned our allies.
It will encourage our boys at the front to know that those at home are doing their share.
It is an expression of loyalty.
It is an evidence of willingness to serve.
It is in the spirit of true democracy.
It is good business judgment to be a bondholder in the institution of your government.
It is not woman's province to fight, but woman's duty to respond to our nation's call.
It is the supreme test of your love of country.

INSURING THE FARM WITH LIBERTY BONDS

By H. ARMSTRONG ROBERTS.

Said a farmer to the cashier of a local bank: "I can't afford to buy Liberty Bonds. The way prices are for seed, fertilizer, labor and such like I need all the cash I have to get my crops started."

"Yes," replied the cashier, "we all need cash. But then we've got to protect that cash, too."

The farmer was puzzled. The cashier went on: "Get any insurance on your barn and other buildings?"

"Sure," the farmer responded; "$10,000."

"You wouldn't be without that protection, would you?"

"No."

"Costs you something to keep it up, doesn't it?"

"Well, I should say it did; about $70 a year."

"Mighty good investment, though, if you happened to have a fire."

"That's the way I try to look at it," returned the farmer.

"Good!" exclaimed the cashier. "That's the way every business man looks at those things. And now I want you to look at these Liberty Bonds in the same light."

"Just as your insurance policies protect your property against loss by fire, so do Liberty Bonds protect your property and the lives of your family against the invasion of the Hun. Make no mistake about it; Liberty Bonds are protection of the strongest sort. The only thing which stands between us and the German hordes is an armed front—well equipped armies, a powerful navy, a giant transport fleet, aircraft and munitions plants. It is this armed front which is safeguarding your property, your loved ones, and liberty."

It is insuring your personal liberty and the right to own property at all. It is preventing us from becoming a slave, a vassal, under one of the most terrible, heartless, wanton military systems the world has ever known.

"Liberty Bonds provide the government with the cash to protect your property against destruction or confiscation; therefore I call them insurance. But, unlike your fire insurance, which offers you nothing in return, excepting you meet with a disaster, the Liberty Bonds constitute a loan, which will be repaid in full at some future date, in addition to which you receive compensation for the loan in the form of interest on the money. In other words, the government is not only willing to provide you with the best protection at its command, but it is willing to pay you well for any assistance you may lend."

"Do you know of a squarer bargain than that?"

The farmer was convinced. "I never thought of it that way," he said. "Reckon my farm won't be worth much if we don't win, so I'll go the limit on those bonds and charge 'em up to insurance."

Over the Top

BOND LIMERICKS.
A man who knew less than he should
Marked he was misunderstood
When he said it was right
To stay out of this fight
And defeat the bond sale if one could.

A sensible woman named Jones
Got wise to the Liberty Loans.
Quoth she, "That's the racket
To tan Wilhelm's jacket
And bury his pesky old bones!"

A man whose cognomen was Gray
Bought bonds for his wife every day.
Said he, "I'll surprise her
By captioning the Kaiser
In the economical way!"

A maiden whose surname was Pond
Had a lover of whom she was fond.
"I'll marry you, dear,"
She remarked in his ear.
"If you'll buy me a Liberty Bond!"

LIBERTY COACH ON HISTORIC GROUND

Sketch of the Famous Coach Which Comes Here Tomorrow—It Has Traversed Battle Grounds of Europe and America.

The Liberty Ball and the Liberty Coach which will visit Kingston Saturday afternoon the last lap of their journey across the state from Buffalo to New York, are unique in many respects. Both are sent out under the supervision of the Liberty Loan Committee to add to the interest in the Third Liberty Loan.

The Liberty Ball is a huge ball, propelled by two men walking at the ends of a pole extending through the center of the ball. The ball rolls on a tire which encircles it, extending around it at right angles to the axis formed by the pole used for propulsion.

The Liberty Coach was built in 1897 by James Gordon Bennett after the design of the old London Mail. The builders were Gilson & Guest of Paris and the cost was approximately $7,000 of American money. The weight is between 2,500 and 2,900 pounds and it was the first coach built to use roller bearing wheels. The seats are deep and the backs are rounded at the corners so as to make it an extremely comfortable riding coach. Counting the driver and guard there is room for eleven persons on top and four inside.

The upholstery of the coach is in velvet. As originally painted it bore the colors of the Union Jack. The coach was driven from Paris to Rome and back a distance of nearly eight miles. Mr. Bennett drove the coach several years in France having for guests many of those who were prominent in society throughout Europe. In 1900 James H. Hyde purchased the coach from Mr. Bennett and it began a new journey abroad under the management of Morris E. Howell, who is manager of the present trip.

The 1900 journey of the coach started from Paris and the famous coach was driven along the banks of the Rhine passing the section where in 1914 the mighty battle was fought that ended the German drive toward Paris. Thence it proceeded to Epernay, whence close to Chalons-en-Marne, where the greatest military camp in France is situated, and so on to Rheims whose magnificent cathedral has been the repeated target of German vandalism. Then it proceeded through the Ardennes to Sedan where the fierce battle of 1870 was fought between France and Prussia. It wheeled thousands of additional miles over the European continent before coming to America.

On the same tour of 1900 the coach entered Switzerland, proceeded from Basel crossed the foot of the Alps by way of the Jura Mountains, the lake of Neuchâtel and Geneva and the banks of the Rhone to Martigny from which place it traversed the Alps to the town of Chamonix known to the world—that of crossing up Mont St. Bernard at an altitude of 10,000 feet to the bosom of the snowy mountains traversing the same road built by Napoleon to transport his artillery. Then it entered Italy and crossed the Alps and made a record of the longest drive against the elements in the history of the world. The longest trip was six minutes in Philadelphia. The distance 224 miles was made in a little more than 14 hours and has ever since been regarded as the most famous of all coaching trips. Horses were changed thirty-five times. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt accompanied Mr. Hyde on the trip and supplied many of the horses used. In 1903 the coach was run as a public coach between New York and Lakewood, N. J. For several weeks the trip of 81 miles was made daily except Sunday and an average speed of 11 1/2 miles was maintained which was considered a wonderful coaching feat. Later the coach was sold at auction.

Having traveled over much of the historic battle ground of Europe particularly where the titanic struggle is now taking place, the coach on its present trip has traveled over historic trails. From Buffalo eastward the roads traveled are historic because of the famous pioneer battles which took place between American Colonists and the Indians. Further eastward it passed Fort Stanwix where Colonel Peter Gansevoort commanded the American forces that fought the Indians under Joseph Brant in 1777. Oriskany where General Herkimer was entrapped by Brant, and the Battle of Schoharie and Albany all of which are rich with historic memories. It is appropriate that the Liberty Coach should visit Kingston.

EASTER IN REAL HUGUENOT CHURCH

Soldier Attends Service in Ancient and Musty French Church—Astor Yacht—The Shoemaker's Despair—Romancers and Others.

On Active Service with the American Expeditionary Force, April 2.—Today I received 10 letters from home, some old and some new. Some of the news was new, others simply connected up missing links with letters of later dates. You see some mail comes one route on a fast ship while others come slower. Eventually we get it and sometimes in record time. Mail coming to us, of course, is not censored and thus carries a bit of time over outgoing mail here.

You seem to think all of France is right up at the trenches. Well, it is not. I am back where the only roar of guns I hear is at target practice and am too far away even for air raids. In fact people are coming down here from towns at the front, especially in the winter, for it always was a great town for winter time.

You ask do we see any prisoners of war. Well, I should say so. Lots of them. Yesterday was Easter and so show that even though we were away from home we still thought of something else but war, a truck load of us went to town, to church. I at first thought I would go to the American services, but decided to do something novel for my first Easter abroad, so picked out a very ancient and dusty looking stone church, which looked good to me, and went there. It was a French Presbyterian or Reformed Church, and one of the old Huguenot Churches maybe some of our ancestors attended before they were chased out of France, and the services were in French, but I think the preacher must have been a first-class man for his delivery was so clear I could make out parts of his sermon and also his text. The singing was great and they had a good pipe organ and choir. The choir was seated up in a box over the organ. Bittner, who understands quite a bit of French went with me. You know how — and I always poke about the unusual place. Well, I had one of those spells yesterday, so went to the French church. Then to top off the day had turkey dinner, soup, cranberry sauce and ice cream. French fried potatoes, coffee and salad for dinner, and met our friends and went to the rink in the afternoon. In the evening we dined for 2 francs.

Apple Blossom Time in —

The country about here is taking on a look of summer now. There are some apples, cherries, etc., grown here and the trees are in bloom. The peach trees have bloomed and in some places are up. Peas are 4 and 5 inches tall and grape vines are budding out, so you see we are ahead of the rest. Today it rained, but I went to town as usual and I'll say it was some slippery and muddy. Just a drizzle, you know. I did not stop to see Lavin, for I was in a hurry. It is the first rain we have had for some time, and we have rained since Saturday. Now (6:30 p. m.) it is clear again and I guess the rain is over.

There doesn't seem to be the big Easter parade here as in the states. So the rain didn't prevent anyone showing their new gown. Sorry to say I had neither a new suit nor hat for Easter.

No, I am not mixed up on my geography. I know there are several towns in France one might mix up pretty well as the names are similar, but I have seen enough to know one from another, I guess.

The Astor Yacht.

Jacobi gets the American and I saw long place about Mr. and Mrs. Astor. I saw the old Astor yacht one day and recognized it. It is quite different from when she lay anchored off our little burgh in the Hudson river. I visited one of the aero fields some time ago and you know what the Allied aviators are doing now. Well, wait until they get really started. I was also to a camp where a bunch of New York Infantry are, but was not able to get down to their quarters with the truck on account of bad roads, so don't know if there are any boys there. I know. I may get to see again some time. Oh, for a talk with someone from home. Why, I must never know of the trolley car smash or any news like that until I gave him the papers. I'll bet some of the boys would like to hear from their friends a bit more often. We don't know anything except what you write, for we can't very well swap news when we are so far apart.

Cordella's Brother.

I got a letter today to tell. It sounds sort of like a yarn, but it is the truth. A big 6 foot, 6 inch infantry man went with me one day to town and I never thought he was so big until he stepped off the car alongside an average sized Frenchman. He is six feet, 6 inches in his stocking feet. Well, here is the joke. We went to buy a pair of leggings and he asked the shoemaker how much it would be to have a pair of shoes made. The Frenchman said a lot of things and then mentioned 56 francs. We did not know what he said until a French lieutenant came in who could speak English. The cobbler was trying to tell us he could not make the shoes so wide as the big boy had on. So we told him a bit narrower would do. Well, if he had a last big enough the job would be 70 francs for tan, so he got down his dusty, seldom used lasts and picked out the largest size. But — it was 4 of an inch too short, so he can't make the shoes. I am wondering if there is a shoe or a last big enough in France. This fellow is so big he spreads out his arms and nine of ten Frenchman can walk under his arms. This sounds like a fairy tale, but I can produce the man. I never saw a taller man in my life. He caused comment every time we stopped.

"Meet Me in France."

I received a letter from Lieut. Saunders. Do you remember last time he was at the house. I told him I'd see him in France, and how he laughed. Well, he mentioned that he has offered to do any thing to get over our can't. He can't see why someone who wants to go can't while so many who are not anxious to cross are over here. He thought I was joking last summer, but I beat him over.

I have not even seen a sailor from home yet or met one who knows any, although I see many. I wonder if Raymond will come over or stay about the coast?

I received the magazines, but not the packages. Also I did write the Red Men. Maybe some of my mail was among the 30,000 lost.

There are a great many over here who are going to be romancers on the war when they return, and I am afraid there will be some good stories. Believe me, when this war is over I am going to forget about it, no amusing or entertaining stories for your truly. I don't ride any war horses after I sight the Statue of Liberty. I'll read over my diary once in a while to recall old times, that will suit me.

Well, it is getting dark and I guess I'll quit for the present. I have about 14 letters now to answer, so I must get busy. I don't get much time and I receive so much mail. At the office at headquarters they say I get more mail than any

Mothers Here Interested in New Treatment

Relieves Colds Over Night and Croup in Fifteen Minutes—Applied Externally.

NOTHING TO SWALLOW, YOU JUST RUB IT ON.

Local Druggists Have Arranged to Sell 25c, 50c, or $1.00 Packages on 30 Days' Trial.

Local druggists report a great deal of interest, especially among mothers with small children, in the remarkable external "vapor" treatment, known as VapoRub, recently introduced here from the South.

This treatment makes unnecessary "dosing" with injurious medicines, using flannel jackets and chest protectors, or keeping the children shut up indoors. You can let the little chaps run outdoors and get their needed fresh air and exercise. If colds do start, "rub them in the bud" by using VapoRub. It is externally applied and can therefore be used freely and often, with perfect safety, on the smallest member of the family.

VapoRub comes in salve form and is applied over the throat and chest, covering with a warm flannel cloth. The body heat releases medicated vapors that are inhaled with every breath, all night long, through the air passages to the lungs. These vapors loosen the phlegm and clear the air passages.

In cases of very severe chest colds or incipient pneumonia, first apply hot, wet towels over the throat and chest to open the pores. VapoRub is then absorbed through and stimulates the skin, taking out that tightness and soreness in the chest.

Ask your druggist about the 30 days' trial offer.—Advertisement.

KAISER INSPECTS ZEEBRUGGE RUINS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
London, April 26.—The Kaiser has visited the German submarine base at Zeebrugge on the Belgian coast to make a personal inspection of the damage done in the British raid, said a Central News despatch from Amsterdam today.

The British admiralty has issued a long statement, giving an inspiring narrative of the British attack and detailing deeds of deathless bravery at both Ostend and Zeebrugge.

The outstanding fact was that two previous attempts had been made to raid the submarine bases but both had been frustrated by bad weather. The whole exploit was carried out through a gale and under shelling and the fire from machine guns.

Col. Elliott, leading the marines, and Captain Halsman, leading the bluejackets, were killed before the assault commenced. Many of the British were killed in the ganeways and on the lower decks of the cruiser Vindictive. The ship speedily became a shambles. Two crews of the forward howitzer were killed.

The storming and demolition parties did not meet any resistance at the Zeebrugge pier except the fire from German artillery.

Hangars and store sheds were set on fire and blown up.

The "skeleton crews" of the block ships kept the guns going.

The propeller of the Thetis fouled on the German net defences and was pounded by gunfire. The ship became unmanageable and sank some hundreds of yards from the mouth of the (Bruges) Canal.

The Intrepid and Aphigenia were successfully beached and were blown up on either side of the canal.

Aerial observation afterwards established the fact that both hulks are in position at the entrance of the canal and that the harbor mouth is effectively blocked.

A submarine was rammed at the jetty and cut in half.

Amidst the smoke clouds through which the raid was carried out, the North Star lost her way, but was located by the Germans through use of star shells. She was sunk but the Phoebe rescued nearly all of her crew.

At Ostend the wind changed during the course of the operation dispersing the smoke clouds, and revealing the Sirius and Brilliant. Both sailed to the entrance of the harbor and they rebounded and sank about 400 yards east of the pier.

The crews of both were saved.

Seventy-nine men were killed on the Iris (off Zeebrugge), and 105 were wounded.

This was the first of the British warships to attempt to grapple the Zeebrugge mole, but the effort failed.

Then the Daffodil pushed the Vindictive alongside of the mole.

Two of the officers of the Iris were astride the parapet with grappling hooks but were killed. The commander was mortally wounded. The Iris was forced to fall astern of the Vindictive by the German shelling.

Big projectiles plunged into the upper decks of the Iris and burst below, killing 49 marines and wounding the remaining seven. A shell struck the ward room, killing four officers and 26 men.

DIEDLING PROVES B. S. L. AGAIN LIES

Stories circulated sometime ago by the Busy Street Liar in reference to Dr. Rudolph F. Diedling of Saenger, to which attention was called by The Freeman, ought to be definitely put at rest by the following postal which was received from him on Thursday by Julius Oppenheimer of Oppenheimer Brothers, the Broadway Jewelers:

On Active Service

Dear Julius:—
Your guess was wrong. Beautiful country, old villages, etc., but Saenger is good enough for mine. Cigars are impossible to get here. Take the hint. Regards to all the boys.
Sincerely,
DOC.

The Freeman will be glad to publish the explanation which any Busy Street Liar may care to furnish regarding his own particular and pernicious activity.

GODFREY GOES TO ROCHESTER

Local Y. M. C. A. Physical Director to Become Executive Secretary of Maplewood Branch—Leaves Tuesday Morning.

Physical Director L. C. Godfrey of the local Y. M. C. A., whose resignation was recently accepted by the board of directors, leaves Kingston Tuesday morning for Rochester, N. Y., where he has accepted the call to become executive secretary of the Maplewood Branch of the Y. M. C. A.

Mr. Godfrey became physical director of the local association in September, 1914, and since that time has proven one of the most efficient directors the association has ever known. He was not only an all-around athlete but was capable of imparting what he knew to those under his instruction.

It will be remembered that the Maplewood Branch of the Rochester Y. M. C. A. had acquired two other Kingston men, the first man was "Gus" Ponesteel, who is now building superintendent of the building at Rochester and the other was Clarence Schoonmaker who is now at the Central Branch in Rochester.

The board of directors have not secured another man to succeed Mr. Godfrey as yet, and as the gymnasium season is drawing to a close they make take no action until fall when the gym reopens.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS NOTES

The high school entertainment will be held in the high school auditorium on Monday evening, April 29, at 8 o'clock. The proceeds will be for the benefit of the victrola and school funds.

This entertainment will probably be the largest that has ever been given in the high school. In all about two hundred students will take part. There will be a glee club of about one hundred voices. A number of drills, dances, etc., will be given in which about eighty students will take part. Last, but not least, a short play entitled, "The Ring," will be given by a number of seniors.

If you are a taxpayer in Kingston, if you have any relatives attending the high school you ought to come to the entertainment; Monday night. The purpose of the entertainment is to show its patrons what is being done at the high school.

At a meeting of the senior class Tuesday night the class day speakers were elected. They are as follows: Class orator, Nelson Miles; class poet, Dorothy Downer; class critic, Eugene Ryan; class historian, Vivian O'Neil; class legacy, Agnes S. Smith; class prophet, Emily Crosby; address to faculty, Russell R. Dana, Jr.; advice to juniors, Peter Ryan; class eloquist, Anna Cassler.

The juniors, failing in their attempts to secure either, former ambassador to Germany, Gerard, or Arthur Guy Emery or Hon. Theodore Roosevelt to lecture in Kingston, have at last resorted to a dance in order to raise money. The dance will be held in the high school gymnasium on Friday evening, May 2. If the alumni of the two old academies, the alumni of the high school support the juniors as well as they did the seniors the juniors will be rich. The seniors cleared about three dollars with which to replenish their Red Cross fund.

Rings Around the Moon.
Those superstitious persons who have not yet recovered from the shock of seeing a brilliant cross on the moon on three occasions during the last four months or so are now worrying about the latest unusual sight that the moon featured Thursday night. The moon was unusually bright and was surrounded by several brilliant and broad rings of red, white and blue. This lasted for some little time. About one o'clock this morning the brilliant colored rings disappeared as mysteriously as they came and a small streak of yellow fringed on one side of the moon. "Wonder what it all means?" was a remark often heard as the novel sight was witnessed.
